Davis, William Stearns. D324gi

Gilman of Redford; a story of Boston & Harvard College on the eve of the Revolutionary War, 1770–1775. Macmillan.

Detzer, Karl W. D483m

The marked man; a romance of the Great Lakes. Bobbs.

Vividly presents the life of the fishermen, coast guards, lighthouse tenders, and farm folk on the shores of Lake Michigan. Norman Erickson, whose fear of the water makes him enlist in the lighthouse service instead of becoming a fisherman, finds his wavering courage subjected to many severe tests. Adapted from Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Farnol, Jeffery. F245q

The quest of youth. Little.

"Sir Marmaduke, forty-five, bored with life, and inclined toward biliousness, takes up his gold-headed cane to tramp the road in search of youth. Under an assumed name, he rescues a beautiful Quakeress from a scoundrel, and incriminates himself in a murder of which she is suspected... They set out for London, as the best place in which to lose themselves." Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Furman, Lucy S. F989L

The lonesome road. Little.

A story of the Kentucky mountains, of two boys whose friendship was strong enough to outlast the tragedy of their love for the same woman.

Gale, Zona. G145y

Yellow gentians and blue. Appleton.

A collection of 19 very brief short stories. The significance of the title lies in the fact that while the yellow gentian has a bitter taste, the blue is a symbol of hope and energy. The greater number of stories are among the yellow gentians.

Harper, Theodore Acland. H2843s

Siberian gold [written] in collaboration with Winifred Harper; illustrated by Boris Artzybasheff. Doubleday.

A young mining engineer's adventures and romance in frozen Siberia.

Hemingway, Ernest. H436m

Men without women. Scribner.

Contents.—The undefeated.—In another country.—Hills like white elephants.—The killers.—Che ti dice la patria?—Fifty grand.—A simple enquiry.—Ten Indians.—A canary for one.—An Alpine idyll.—A pursuit race.—To-day is Friday.—Banal story.—Now I lay me.

Johnston, Mary. J3692e

The exile. Little.

"The tale is one of imagination and prophecy. It deals with an imaginary island in a future period; with reincarnation; with a political exile of noble soul; and the dawn, after another great war and a subsequent 'Era of Dictators,' of a new age when 'the world is one'." Outlook, 1927.

Kennedy, Margaret. K1844r

Red sky at morning. Doubleday.

The story centers around the twins, Emily and William Crowne, gifted children of a poet who dies in disgrace.

"The twins have a brief but spectacular career...in London, sought after for their wit and beauty, always rousing old gossip and the never sleeping scandal attached to their father's name...The theme, inherited jealousy and inherited passion, might be morbid if it were handled with less skill and discernment, but it develops so gradually and there is so much quiet beauty by the way that the final scenes fill the reader with excitement and pity." Times [London] literary supplement, 1927.

Miln, Mrs. Louise (Jordan). M7122in

In a Yün-nan courtyard. Stokes.

A picture of Chinese life in one of the interior provinces. The plot is a double one, concerning a group of Chinese, and a group of "foreigners".

Steele, Wilbur Daniel. S814m

The man who saw through heaven, and other stories. Harper.

Walpole, Hugh. W1862jr

Jeremy at Crale; his friends, his ambitions, and his one great enemy. Doran.

A story of English public school life.

Wells, Herbert George. W4941co

The country of the blind, and other stories. Nelson.

Contents.—The jilting of Jane.—The cone.—The stolen bacillus.—The flowering of the strange orchid.—In the Avu Observatory.—Æpyornis Island.—The remarkable case of Davidson's eyes.—The lord of the dynamos.—The moth.—The treasure in the forest.—The story of the late Mr. Elvesham.—Under the knife.—The sea raiders.—The obliterated man.—The Plattner story.—The red room.—The purple pileus.—A slip under the microscope.—The crystal egg.—The star.—The man who could work miracles.—A vision of judgment.—Jimmy Goggles the god.—Miss Winchelsea's heart.—A dream of Armageddon.—The valley of spiders.—The new accelerator.—The truth about Pyecraft.—The magic shop.—The empire of the ants.—The door in the wall.—The country of the blind.—The beautiful suit.

Yezierska, Anzia. Y26ar

Arrogant beggar. Doubleday.

The story of a vivid Russian-Jewish working-girl who finds charity too bitter to tolerate and insists on making her own hard, lonely way to success and happiness.

Yonge, Charlotte Mary. Y29th

The three brides. Macmillan. (Novels and tales, v.11.)

Lindsey, Benjamin Barr, & Evans, Wainwright. 173 L72

The companionate marriage. Boni, 1927.

Urges that legal recognition be given to social conditions that are already firmly established by differentiating in the divorce laws between the family marriage and the marriage without children, and by permitting the general dissemination of facts concerning birth control. Judge Lindsey contends that such a modification of the law would be a safeguard against the restlessness of youth by making earlier marriages possible.

Lyon, Leverett Samuel, & Butler, A. M., comp. 174 L99v

Comprehensive work dealing with the chemistry and physics of water, ice, and snow, the nature of glacier ice, and the measurement and causes of glacier movement. Describes in an interesting manner the author's expeditions in the Alps.

United States—Mines bureau. r 557.3 U253

Mining industry of the United States of America; supplementing exhibit of the Bureau of mines at the Brazilian Centennial Exposition, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, 1922–1923, by T. T. Read. [1922.]

Report prepared for the Commission of the United States of America to the Brazil Centennial Exposition.

Wybergh, W. J. r 553.2 W97

The coal resources of Union of South Africa. 2v. 1922–25. (South Africa—Geological survey. Memoir, no.19.)

Contains folded plates.
"Publications of the Geological survey" at end of each volume.
v.1. The coalfields of Witbank, Springs, and Heidelberg, and of the Orange Free State.
v.2. The inland coalfields of Natal.

Botany

Eaton, Amos. r 580.3 E19

A botanical dictionary, being a translation from the French of Louis-Claude Richard, with extensive additions from Martin [and others]. Ed.2. Howe, 1819.

Sinnott, Edmund Ware. 580.7 S61

Laboratory manual for elementary botany. McGraw, 1927. (McGraw-Hill publications in the agricultural and botanical sciences.)

"The present Manual has been written in response to requests for a series of laboratory exercises to accompany the author's 'Botany: Principles and Problems'." Preface.

Torrey, John, & Gray, Asa. r 581.97 T63

A flora of North America, containing abridged descriptions of all the known indigenous and naturalized plants growing north of Mexico, arranged according to the natural system. 2v. Wiley, 1838–[43].

v.2 has no title-page.

Zoölogy

Chamberlin, Willard Joseph. r 595.765 C35

The Buprestidae of North America, exclusive of Mexico; a catalogue including synonomy, bibliography, distribution, type locality, and hosts of each species. [c1926.]

Brought up to January 1925.

Dakin, William John. 590 D15

The elements of general zoology; a guide to the study of animal biology, correlating function and structure, with notes on practical exercises. Oxford University Press, 1927.

"Function is the dominating note of the book and, except for a chapter specially devoted to the Protozoa, the subject matter is arranged under the headings of the various functions of the animals and not under the customary systematic groups. In dealing with any one function, the author has given just so much structural detail of the organs concerned as is necessary for a proper comprehension of their uses, and has saved much valuable space by the free use of carefully annotated drawings and diagrams to impart the details of anatomy. Among the most valuable parts of the book are the experiments, which are carefully outlined in each chapter, for practical demonstration of the physiological processes underlying function... It is the most refreshing and stimulating text-book, from the teacher's point of view, that has been published for some time." Nature, 1927.

Maeterlinck, Maurice. 595.732 M24

The life of the white ant; tr. by Alfred Sutro. Dodd, 1927.

Bibliography: p.231–238.

The author "returning to the study of insect communities, has found in the termite, or white ant, a subject almost as fascinating as that of the bee, and one which is far less familiar. His method...has been, as before, to collect accurate but widely scattered facts into a harmonious grouping, enriching them with his own reflections and interpretations...Humanity is still the real hero of his drama, and if he turns to insects, it is to point out their relationship and analogy to man". Nation & athenæum, 1927.

Warden, Carl John. 591.51 W21

A short outline of comparative psychology. Norton [c1927]. (The new science series.)

Brief historical sketch of the interpretation of animal behavior.

Useful Arts

American Society of Mechanical Engineers. r 607 A5122

Education and training for the industries; papers selected by the A. S. M. E. Committee on education and training for the industries largely from programs arranged by it for sessions held since 1923. [c1927.]

Associated Tile Manufacturers, Beaver Falls, Pa. qr 691.3 A84ba

Basic course in tile setting. c1923.

Consists of instructions for 19 jobs.

With this are bound "Instructor's sheet" for jobs, no.1–9, "Instructor's guide", "Report of conference at Dunwoody", and "Scholarships for basic course in tile setting at Dunwoody Industrial Institute, Minneapolis, offered by Associated Tile Manufacturers".

Brady, Frank Lawrence. 691 B68

An introduction to building science. Arnold, 1927.

"Building science literature": p.275–276.

Intended as a text-book on the scientific study of building materials, with special reference to their properties. Treats of those parts of physics and chemistry which are applicable to building. Includes a series of experiments.

Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh. qr 607 C216e

Educational resources of Pittsburgh and the Carnegie Institute of Technology. [Pittsburgh, 1926.]

Pamphlet pointing out the educational benefits which may be derived from the location of the school in a great industrial district.

Crittall, W. F. 694.64203 C88

A window dictionary: containing illustrated descriptions of technical terms used in connection with window openings. Batsford, 1926.

Confined to terms used in the metal-window industry.

Goodrich (B. F.) Company, Akron, Ohio. r 678 G62t

A trip through rubberland: a short survey of the rubber industry. c1926.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, O. qr 678 G63

The story of Goodyear. c1925.

Published as a special edition of the "Goodyear news".

Attempts to give some of the outstanding features of the development and use of rubber, with emphasis on the work of the Goodyear corporation.

Haas, Walter de. r 609 H11

Technische träume, von Hanns Günther (W. de Haas). 1922. (Aus natur und technik.)

Johnson, George Henry. 677 J36

Textile fabrics; their selection and care from the standpoint of use, wear, and launderability. Harper, 1927.

"Select bibliography": p.376–377.

The same.....r 677 J36

Able treatment intended both for the launderer and the user of fabrics. Discusses properties of fibers; weaving, knitting, bleaching, dyeing, printing, finishing, and testing; and mechanical, chemical, and natural sources of damage. Much of the information was collected by the Department of research of the Laundryowners National Association and by the American Institute of Laundering.

Klein, Paul E. 685.32 K31

Shoe repairing. Bruce Pub. Co. [c1926.]

Manual of instruction for vocational courses, making use of simple and inexpensive equipment. Includes suggestions for teachers.

qr 691.7505 K38

Korrosion und metallschutz unter einbeziehung des allgemeinen materialschutzes; organ des Reichsausschusses fur metallschutz [bimonthly]. 1925–date. v.1–date. 1925–date.

q 672 L32

Large uses of steel in small ways, with statistical section on general consumption, prices, production, exports and imports, and other related business data. v.1. [Penton Pub. Co., c1926.]

Reprinted from the "Iron trade review".

Describes briefly the manufacture of many metal articles of small size or slight construction.

Mullin, Charles Earl. 677.36 M96

Acetate silk and its dyes; with a foreword by L. A. Olney. Van Nostrand, 1927.

The present volume is largely based upon two series of articles, "Dyeing acetate silk" and "Acetate silk, its dyes and their application", originally published in the "American dyestuff reporter" of 1925 and 1926.

"References" at end of most of the chapters.

Compilation, dealing very largely with the dyeing of cellulose acetate silk and the dyestuffs used. Gives details of processes, with references to the literature.

Perry, L. Day. 689 P44

Seat weaving. Manual Arts Press [c1917].

Elementary text-book for manual-training classes giving directions for weaving cane, rush, reed, and splint seats.

Poole, B. W. qr 687 P79

The science of pattern construction for garment makers; the standard textbook for merchant tailors, clothing manufacturers, pattern-cutters, designers, bespoke cutters, tailors, ladies' tailors, and costumiers. Pitman, 1927.

Medicine. Physiology. Hygiene

Arends, Georg, ed. r 615.103 A68

Volkstümliche namen der arzneimittel, drogen, und chemikalien; eine sammlung der im volksmunde gebräuchlichen benennungen und handelsbezeichnungen. Ed.10, rev. & enl. 1926.

Dictionary of synonyms giving both Latin and common names of medicines, drugs, and chemicals.

Barker, Lewellys Franklin, & Cole, N. B. 616.991 B24

Rheumatism; its meaning and its menace. Appleton, 1926.

"Tells what 'rheumatism' is and what it is not; how it leads to disastrous results; how to recognize it; and what physicians do for it...There is also a chapter on gout." Preface.

Bukh, Niels Ebbesen. 613.71 B86

Primary gymnastics; the basis of rational physical development; tr. from the 2d Danish ed. by F. B. Hansen and F. de H. Bevington; with numerous illustrations. Ed.2, rev. Dutton [1925].

Discusses system taught by author in Denmark. Based on Swedish medical and corrective gymnastics.

Fishbein, Morris, ed. 613 F52

Your weight and how to control it; a scientific guide by medical specialists and dieticians; with an introduction by W. C. Phillips; including the Principles of nutrition, with diets and menus for reducing and gaining, by Flora Rose and Mary Henry. Doran [c1927].

Part one is made up of addresses by physicians in attendance at the first "Adult Weight Conferences". These were first published in the Sunday "Magazine" of the New York "Herald tribune".

Hill, Archibald Vivian. 612 H551

Living machinery; eight lectures delivered at the Lowell Institute, Boston, March 1927. Harcourt [c1927].

Six of these lectures were given for children at the Royal Institution in London. They deal with the applications of physiology to industrial work, athletics, mountaineering, muscular training, and every-day life.

Leeds, Lois, & Kaji, H. M. 613.49 L53

Beauty and health; a practical handbook; foreword by Dorothy Dix. Lippincott, 1927.

Comprehensive book dealing with all types of beauty problems such as care of the face and neck, the hair, the limbs, and the figure as a whole, and including chapters on weight control, personality and clothes, and individual problems of personal appearance.

Rose, Mrs. Mary Davies (Swartz). 612.39 R71

The foundations of nutrition. Macmillan, 1927.

"References" at end of each chapter.

Text-book dealing with principles of human nutrition. Contains some interesting material on the history of the subject. Includes many useful tables.

Strickler, Albert. 616.5 S91

The skin; its care and treatment. Appleton, 1927.

Brief book dealing with the structure of the skin; skin diseases of childhood, adolescence, adult life, and old age; diseases of the scalp, hair, and nails; and the effect of cosmetics on the health of the skin.

Thomson, John Arthur. 613 T38

Towards health. Putnam, 1927.

"The chapters formed a series of popular Saturday Evening Lectures (Farquhar Thomson Lectures) delivered annually by members of the Medical Faculty of the University of Aberdeen." Preface.

Bibliography: p.349–356.

"One can think of no other book so plainly written, and so easily understandable by all people, even those educated ever so slightly, which yet embodies nearly all that is to be said to the layman on the general biological principles that lie behind the problems of health." Times [London] literary supplement, 1927.

Engineering

Coal [monthly], Feb.–May 1926. v.1, no.1–4. 1926. qr 622.3305 C6287

United with "Coal trade journal" to form "Coal and coal trade journal".

Crussard, Louis. r 621.6 C89

Ventilateurs et compresseurs; avec le patronage de la Société des Ingénieurs Civils de France, et de la Société d'Encouragement pour l'Industrie Nationale.. 1926. (Encyclopédie de mécanique appliquée.)

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

Dana, Forest Charles, & Willmarth, E. H. 620.8 D19

Engineering problems manual. McGraw, 1927.

Includes problems, with tabular information to aid in their solution, but is not restricted to problems. Is primarily a student note-book for certain freshman courses at Iowa State College. These courses are correlated with the instruction in definite subjects, yet are concerned with such general aims as inculcating proper habits of study, teaching correct methods of computation, and developing an engineering viewpoint.

[The Diesel motor.] 1898.

Pamphlet outlining advantages.

Ham, Clarence Walter, & Crane, E. J. 621.81 H19

Mechanics of machinery. McGraw, 1927.

"References" at end of each chapter.

Contents.—Mechanism.—Kinematics and dynamics of machinery.

Text-book explaining the fundamental mechanisms and the theory of their operation, and the methods of analyzing the forces and motions in these mechanisms or machines.

Marriott, Hugh Frederick. 622 M41

Money & mines; the administration, organisation, and economics of precious and non-ferrous metal mines. Benn, 1925.

"Written primarily for investors in undertakings engaged in working mineral deposits, to enable them to exercise a more intelligent supervision of their own interests, and is designed to give them a fuller knowledge of mining and the management of mining companies." Chemical age [London] 1925.

Moore, Herbert Fisher. 620.123141 M87m

Metallgiesserei; hilfsmittel, arbeitsverfahren, erzeugnisse, und kalkulationsregeln, aus der praxis dargestellt. Ed.2, rev. 1926.

Foundry work with ferrous and non-ferrous (including precious) metals. Deals more with properties of metals and alloys than with methods of casting.

Stodola, Aurel. qr 621.165 S86s

Steam and gas turbines, with a supplement on the prospects of the thermal prime mover; authorized translation from the 6th German ed., by L. C. Loewenstein. 2v. McGraw, 1927.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

"Is not only the outstanding work in its field, but is probably also the most complete and authoritative work in any branch of engineering...Characterized by the completeness of its discussion of the theoretical, experimental, and constructive aspects of the subject. The theory is often carried further than is at present profitable for the constructor, but is invaluable as an aid to the investigator; experimental results are collected from all sources and are carefully analyzed; the constructive features give a thorough picture of the state of the art...Is not a textbook for the average student, but is an invaluable reference book for him. It is primarily...for the specialist. And it is the best of its kind." Lionel S. Marks in Mechanical engineering, 1927.

Electrical Engineering

Moore, Arthur Dearth. 621.31 M87

Fundamentals of electrical design. McGraw, 1927.

Bibliography at the end of some of the chapters.

"This book is offered as a text in which are presented certain fundamental subjects which apply in two ways: they are basic to much electrical design as carried out professionally, and the mastering of these subjects may be considered a necessary part of the training of all electrical engineering students. Thus the earlier chapters will be found to deal with the electromagnetic system, fields and field mapping, attraction, and the thermal problems of heat storage, heat flow, heat radiation, heat dissipation, and temperature rise." Preface.

Pennsylvania—Corporations, Committee on. (Senate.) r 621.341 P399

Giant power; proceedings before the Committee on corporations of the Senate and the Manufacturers committee of the House of representatives, being a joint hearing on Senate giant power bills, no.32, 33, 34, 35, 36, and 37, extraordinary session of 1926. [1926.]

Whitton, Mrs. Mary Ormsbee. 621.3645 W66

The new servant; electricity in the home; illustrated by Leslie Crump. Doubleday, 1927.

Written for the housekeeper who wishes information and advice concerning various household appliances.

Agriculture

Boone, Ray C. P. r 634.1183 B63

Le bananier; culture, industrie, commerce. 1926.

Bibliography: p.[323]–329.

Burt, Frederick A. 631 B94

Soil mineralogy; a discussion of mineralogy in its application to soil studies. Van Nostrand, 1927.

Written for the students and scientific workers in agricultural colleges. Treats of the physical properties of minerals, the various compounds in the soil, the weathering of minerals, determinative mineralogy applied only to minerals found in the soil and supplementary tables showing the relative occurrence, resisting power, and volume changes of minerals.

Connecticut—Agriculture department. r 630.6 C7533

Annual report (1st–date), 1925/26–date. 1926–date.

Previous to 1925, the work of this Department was under the supervision of the State board of agriculture.

Andrew Carnegie, Nov. 25, 1835–Aug. 11, 1919; Pittsburgh newspaper clippings at the time of his death.

Binder's title.

Copy 2 contains a number of clippings from newspapers of other cities.

Atkinson, Justin Brooks. 92 T395at

Henry Thoreau, the cosmic Yankee. Knopf, 1927.

A sympathetic discussion of Thoreau's thought, poetry, and character, with a brief preliminary chronicle of the chief facts in his life history.

Bagger, Eugene Szekeres. 92 F867b

Francis Joseph; emperor of Austria, king of Hungary; with 56 illustrations. Putnam, 1927.

"Authorities": p.557–564.

The author states that his biography is a book of interpretation, not of disclosures, that he regards as his specific contribution its method, not its material. His plan was to build up the personality of Francis Joseph as an organic whole out of the fullest possible array of facts, not primarily to unearth new sources.

Barton, William Eleazer. 92 L715bro

The women Lincoln loved. Bobbs [c1927].

Accounts of the women who were making an important part of Lincoln's world in successive periods of his life, including Lucy Hanks, Nancy Hanks, Ann Rutledge, Mary Owens, Mary Todd, and others whose names are less well known.

Browne, Lewis Allen. 92 H419br

That man Heine; a biography [written] with the collaboration of Elsa Weihl. Macmillan, 1927.

Bibliography: p.405–410.

"Mr. Browne has made his résumé not only easy but exciting to read...For all this reviewer's dislike of Mr. Browne's misleading leit motif [the recurrent phrase 'he did not belong'] his story...fascinates...the facts are established without burying the reader in dust; the chief dramatis personae enter and exit with a novelist's dispatch." Louis Untermeyer in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Chatterton, Edward Keble. 92 S652c

Captain John Smith. Lane [1927]. (The golden hind series.)

Bibliography: p.274–278.

"Mr. Chatterton possesses the self-restraint and sense of proportion to dwell on what is of permanent value in the achievement of Smith at greater length than on what is spectacular and entertaining. He divides Smith's career into three parts. In the first part he is a soldier of fortune fighting like a paladin for his side and not least when it is engaged in piracy...In the third part...he is using all his energy, experience and knowledge in producing books and maps to create 'a great patriotic enthusiasm for colonizing America.' The second part has to do with his own contribution to that colonization in Virginia." Times [London] literary supplement, 1927.

Cruttwell, Maud. 92 U277c

The Princess des Ursins. Dent [1927].

Bibliography: p.422–423.

"Marie-Anne de la Tremoille belonged by birth to the most ancient French nobility. Her first husband was a Talleyrand, Prince de Chalais. A taste for intrigue and gallantry gave her a wide acquaintance with the greatest personages in France, Italy and Spain...She was one of the principal factors in prolonging the interminable and disastrous War of the Spanish Succession...Apparently this is the first biography of the Princess des Ursins to be written in English...yet her story is quite as dramatic as that of either Madame de Maintenon or Madame de Montespan and no less significant." Isabel Paterson in Books, 1927.

Letters and telegrams, selected from the state archives in Vienna, written between 1836 and 1897, and presented, with full running commentary, with the purpose of depicting the essentially personal aspect of the emperor.

Gorman, Herbert S. H367g

Hawthorne; a study in solitude. Doran [c1927]. (Murray Hill biographies.)

"A check list of Nathaniel Hawthorne's books": p.175–176.

"Concerned with the outer life of its subject only so far as that outer life left its mark upon the man or so far as the man shines through his actual deeds...On two points the study lays a fresh emphasis. One of them is to the effect that Hawthorne, while more than Puritan in many of his words and judgments, was nevertheless little touched by the contemporary activity which produced a new literature in New England...The second point is to the effect that Hawthorne's liberation [from Puritan obsessions] proved less than complete when it had to be tested by the larger, less provincial freedom of Mediterranean Europe." Carl Van Doren in Books, 1927.

Grace, Harvey. 92 B383g

Ludwig van Bèethoven. Harper, 1927. (Masters of music.)

"List of works": p.291–304.

The author "has written a straightforward biography, embodying all the essential facts, and has added to it a plain and understandable study of Beethoven's character and music. He examines with judicial coolness the good and the bad...in both, and leaves one with a deeper knowledge and admiration of the composer and his works". Saturday review, 1927.

Hall, Edward Brooks. 92 W223h

Memoir of Mary L. Ware, wife of Henry Ware, jr. Crosby, 1854.

Hortense, queen of Holland. 92 H815h

The memoirs of Queen Hortense, published by arrangement with Prince Napoleon; ed. by Jean Hanoteau, tr. by A. K. Griggs. 2v. Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, 1927.

"Queen Hortense, the daughter of Josephine and the wife of Louis Bonaparte... tells her own story, and the picture she gives of herself is that of a sweet, pure, romantic schoolgirl cast into the whirlpool of European politics...The story is, artistically, convincing. It is not history; she too conveniently suppresses all episodes which would mar the general effect...But on the whole the kindly, merry, sentimental, innocently vain little Hortense she draws for us is far more credible than the crafty Messalina of the anti-Bonapartists." Albert Guerard in Books, 1927.

Hudleston, Francis Josiah. 92 B912h

Gentleman Johnny Burgoyne; misadventures of an English general in the Revolution. Bobbs [c1927].

"Authorities": p.340–350.

"The author has had the shrewdness to see that Burgoyne and his career, properly depicted, sum up all the stupidity, bungling, and systematic mismanagement which enabled England to lose half an empire in the decade 1771–1781. Burgoyne was one of the typical products of the time...Mr. Hudleston has brought out its picturesqueness, its wry funniness, and its instructiveness with a masterly hand...To many the most inimitable part of this admirable book will be the footnotes. They lead everywhere, and in three instances out of four they appeal to our risibilities." Allan Nevins in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Bismarck, the story of a fighter; tr. from the German by Eden and Cedar Paul. Little, 1927.

"He has particularly concentrated on Bismarck's early life, to which most biographers have devoted only a few pages. Here he finds the elements of his psychology ...The stages [of his career]...are described...with extraordinary vividness and yet, often, with careful quotation." A. W. G. Randall in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Lynch, Denis Tilden. 92 T916L

"Boss" Tweed; the story of a grim generation. Boni, 1927.

Bibliography: p.419–423.

In telling the story of Tweed—and he has done it well—Mr. Lynch throws the spotlight of conscientious research on a period notorious for its political scandals. If he occasionally has a good word for Tweed, he has none for his "grim generation". Nor

European War

Ebray, Alcide. 940.93 E22

A Frenchman looks at the peace; tr. by E. W. Dickes. Knopf, 1927.

"Thesis is that the 'Carthaginian Peace of M. Clemenceau'...was incompatible with the Fourteen Points propounded by President Wilson and agreed to by both the Allies and the Germans in the Armistice terms...M. Ebray deserves credit for the clear and restrained manner in which he has drawn up what is in fact a very formidable indictment of the policy pursued by MM. Poincaré and Clemenceau, Mr. Lloyd George, and, in a lesser degree, President Wilson, at the Paris Peace Conference." Saturday review, 1927.

Fry, Anna Ruth. 940.917 F97

A Quaker adventure, the story of nine years' relief and reconstruction; with an introduction by Viscount Cecil of Chelwood. Frank [1926?]

The record of relief work carried on by English and American Quakers during and after the World War in France, Holland, Belgium, Serbia, Russia, Austria, Hungary, Poland, and Germany.

Pergler, Charles. 943.71 P42

America in the struggle for Czechoslovak independence. Dorrance [c1926].

The story of the activities of Czechoslovaks in America during the World War. The author was successively vice-president of the Bohemian National Alliance, director of the Slav Press Bureau in New York, director of the American office of the Czechoslovak National Council, secretary to President Masaryk, commissioner to the United States, and minister to Japan.

Sandes, Flora. 940.918 S21

The autobiography of a woman soldier; a brief record of adventure with the Serbian army, 1916–1919; illustrated from photographs. Stokes [1927].

The author went out from England to Serbia as a nurse at the beginning of the World War, and joined a Serbian ambulance unit in 1915. When during the retreat through Albania the country became too rough for ambulances to follow, she joined an infantry regiment as a private, and rose to the rank of captain.

Books for the Blind

The Library has a collection of about 5,000 books and 5 periodicals for the blind. The Pennsylvania Home Teaching Society and Free Circulating Library for the Blind support in this district a teacher, herself totally blind, who, under the direction of this Library, visits the adult blind in their homes and teaches them to read. This service and the use of the books are absolutely free to all adult blind in Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania and the director requests that names and addresses of such persons be sent to him in order that the teacher may call upon them.

Fiction

[Begbie, Harold.] B385j

Julius; a novel, by a gentleman with a duster. Doran.

Tells of Julius, the son of a wealthy French Jew living on his estate in England, from his boyhood at home, through his life at Oxford and his travels to India, till just before his marriage. His varied friendships afford many pictures of different types of contemporary English society.

Cankar, Ivan. C172y

Yerney's justice; tr. from the Slovenian (Yugoslav) by Louis Adamic. Vanguard Press.

The author of this story, generally regarded as among the foremost literary figures of Jugoslavia, was one to whom the power of the artist appealed primarily because of its effectiveness as a weapon of social reform. The brief history of Yerney is a sort of Pilgrim's Progress, a biting commentary on the system which denies the worker the fruit of his labor. It is simple and direct in its unfolding, and moves swiftly to a harsh and tragic end. Adapted from Books, 1927.

Clark, Barrett Harper. C518gr

Great short novels of the world; a collection of complete tales chosen from the literatures of all periods and countries. McBride.

"Reading list": p.1301–1302.

Contents.—Biblical literature: Judith, Anonymous.—Ancient Greece: Daphnis and Chloe [by] Longus.—Ancient Rome: Cupid and Psyche [by] Apuleius.—Ancient India: Apaharavarman's adventure [by] Dandin.—Arabia: The voyages of Sinbad [from] Arabian Nights.—Great Britain: Sir Galahad [by] Sir Thomas Malory; Apolonius and Silla [by] Barnabe Riche; Incognita [by] William Congreve; Rosanna [by] Maria Edgeworth; the Bedford-Row conspiracy [by] W. M. Thackeray; Rain [by] W. S. Maugham; The apple tree [by] John Galsworthy.—Germany: Poor Heinrich [by] Hartmann von Aue; Peter Schlemihl [by] Adalbert von Chamisso; Immensee [by] Theodor Storm.—France: Aucassin and Nicolette, Anonymous; Zadig [by] Voltaire; Carmen [by] Prosper Mérimée; The pastoral symphony [by] André Gide.—Italy: Romeo and Giulietta [by] Matteo Bandello; In silence [by] Luigi Pirandello.—Spain: The test of friendship [by] Juan Perez de Montalván; Their son [by] Eduardo Zamacois.—China: The miraculous portrait [from] Marvelous tales.—Japan: The old bamboo-hewer's story, Anonymous.—Finland: Outlawed [by] Juhani Aho.—Russia: A Lear of the steppes [by] Ivan Turgenev; A sky-blue life [by] Maxim Gorky.—Poland: Tomek Baran [by] W. S. Reymont.—Jugoslavia: The dream of Doctor Mišić [by] Ljuba Babic-Gjalski.—Czechoslovakia: Childless [by] Ignat Hermann.—Norway: The bridal march [by] Björnstjerne Björnson.—Denmark: The four devils [by] Herman Bang.—The United States: Rip Van Winkle [by] Washington Irving; Daisy Miller [by] Henry James; Youma [by] Lafcadio Hearn; Evelina's garden [by] M. E. W. Freeman; Tubal Cain [by] Joseph Hergesheimer.

Ertz, Susan. E7882no

Now east, now west. Appleton.

"Susan Ertz brings under the microscope of her very keen observation an American couple of ample means but meagre background who are suddenly transplanted into transoceanic surroundings new to them but old in beauty and culture...George Goodall is...thrust by fate and an ambitious wife into the thick of English life. There is no story to tell of him aside from a decisive friendship with an Englishwoman which first puts his feet on the path that leads him out of stultification towards reality. His are spiritual adventures which do not run into plots." Gladys Graham in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Farnham, Mateel Howe. F2452r

Rebellion. Dodd.

Awarded a prize by Dodd, Mead and the "Pictorial review".

"Concerned with the revolt of Jacqueline Burrell, a wilful and spirited young person, against the stupid tyranny of her father." New republic, 1927.

The scene of the romance is a Kansas town.

Gide, André. G374c

The counterfeiters (Les faux-monnayeurs); tr. from the French by Dorothy Bussy. Knopf.

A sordid picture of the lives of a middle-class group, mostly young and decadent.

"Against a background barely indicated, but at moments diabolic and unreal, he presents a series of interlocking episodes, each leading to another, continuing yet renewing the narrative without any slackening of interest." Theodore Purdy, jr. in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Jefferies, Richard. J231r

Round about a great estate. Roberts.

Describes the birds and flowers and other wild life, as well as the life of the farmers and villagers, about an old estate in the English downlands in the middle of the 19th century.

Norris, Kathleen. N4523ba

Barberry Bush. Doubleday.

Barbara Atherton, called affectionately Barberry Bush, disappointed in Link Mackenzie, a solid citizen, marries a temperamental young poet, Barry du Spain. This is the story of their stormy married life and efforts at readjustment.

Pease, Howard. P3542j

The jinx ship; the dark adventure that befell Tod Moran when he shipped as fireman aboard the tramp steamer "Congo", bound out of New York for Caribbean ports; illustrated by Mahlon Blaine. Doubleday.

Shepherd, Eric. S548c

Coming the rose. Houghton.

A Cambridge professor and his daughter Adorée, while traveling, meet a former student of the professor's, Peter Archer, and Provence becomes the setting for an idyllic romance.

Stephens, Robert Neilson. S835b

The bright face of danger; being an account of some adventures of Henri de Launay, son of the Sieur de la Tournoire; freely tr. into modern English. Page.

Sequel to "An enemy to the king".

Tomlinson, H. M. T597g

Gallions Reach. Harper.

"A lyrical novel, the Odyssey of a spirit realizing its own qualities by fine responses to perils and seductions on sea and land. Probably there is material here for at least two books...The concentrated story of Jim's reception into the courtesy and comity of the 'Altair,' the voyage of that doomed ship, and her heart-moving end in the wild Indian seas, with the sequel of the anguished survivors in the boats, seems almost enough for the consciousness. But a new adventure begins in Rangoon and Penang; and after the suffering and exaltation of the sea comes the more fantastic suffering and exaltation of the jungle." R. A. Taylor in Spectator, 1927.

Van Dine, S. S., pseud. V185c

The "Canary" murder case; a Philo Vance story. Scribner.

A detective story.

Verschoyle, Catherine M. V282o

Oldham; a novel. Longmans.

The story of a pleasant English family and of Anne's long contest with the housekeeper, Oldham, whose insidious, baleful influence and hypnotic power are gradually destroying the household.

General Works

American Library Association. r 021 A51

Why we need a public library; a clip sheet for newspapers and magazines, comp. by the Committee on library extension. 1927.

"This compilation has been made to answer the many calls for 'fillers' for the daily and weekly papers, in campaigns for the establishment of local and county public libraries. Short quotations therefore predominate...General indorsements of the public library are followed by sections showing the many and varied activities of a modern library." Foreword.

Baer (Joseph) & Co. qr 016.093 B14in

Incunabula typographica. 2v. ([Catalogue] no.695, 725.)

An illustrated catalogue including books printed in Germany, Italy, Switzerland, France, the Netherlands, and Spain.

Bent, Silas. 071 B44

Ballyhoo; the voice of the press; illustrated. Boni, 1927.

The author is a widely experienced and very practical newspaper man. He has amassed an astonishing volume of evidence to prove that the press, as its apparent power extends, is losing all real influence, all dignity, all sense of proportion, all intellectual honesty. He examines the problem from all sides, never oversimplifies it, and presents the reader with a store of facts. But, if anything emerges more clearly than another from Mr. Bent's book, it is the fact that the press is more frequently hysterical and idiotic than it is corrupt and Machiavellian. Condensed from Ernest Boyd in Independent, 1927.

Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. r 028 C21r

[Reading lists.] [Pittsburgh] 1925–26.

Cole, Virginia Lee. r 071 C68

The newspaper and crime. 1927. (Missouri University. Bulletin; journalism series, no.44.)

Thesis (M. A.)—University of Missouri.
Bibliography: p.77–84.
The first part of this short study gives a general historical sketch of crime publicity. The second and longer part presents surveys, experiments, observations, and statistics in regard to the treatment of crime news in representative American newspapers, and considers arguments for and against crime publicity.

Davenport, Cyril. 090 D29

Byways among English books; with sixty-one drawings by the author and sixteen other illustrations. Stokes [1927].

Bibliography at end of each chapter.
Bibliographies of books illustrated by George Baxter, H. K. Browne, George Cruikshank, Richard Doyle, John Leech, and Sir John Tenniel: Appendix 1–6, p.164–182.
"Begins with general observations on the subject of collecting, offers some useful hints on how fraudulent imitations of old books may be detected, and passes on to a consideration of such subjects as typography, engraving and binding. A special chapter is devoted to illustrated books, while such subjects as miniature books, horn books, book-stamps and book-plates receive detailed treatment." Saturday review, 1927.

[Jast, Louis Stanley.] r 024.89 J21

Biography

Individual Biography

[Allegheny County, Pa., Bar Association.] qr 92 S525aL

John Douglas Shafer. [Pittsburgh, 1927.]

A memorial to Judge Shafer (1848–1926), president judge of the Court of common pleas of Allegheny County. Contains also tributes of the press, and individual tributes published in the "Pittsburgh legal journal", October 14, 1926.

Arliss, George. 92 A724ar

Up the years from Bloomsbury; an autobiography; with illustrations. Little, 1927.

This account of the eminent English actor "is cleverly written and has the somewhat uncommon characteristics of modesty, sanity, shrewdness, and an informing spirit of kindly humor". J. R. Towse in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Baker, Ray Stannard. 92 W7732ba

Woodrow Wilson; life and letters. v.1–2. Doubleday, 1927.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.
[v.1.] Youth, 1856–1890.
[v.2.] Princeton, 1890–1910.

The same.....r 92 W7732ba

"Written by one who had access for the first time to all of Wilson's letters and to all the data which his family and friends possessed, Mr. Baker's 'Life' might well be expected to be...a brief for the defense...[but] Mr. Baker also has included an honest 'Life' of Wilson, one of the rare biographies in which all of the facts in every controversy...are set down...Woodrow Wilson is most fortunate in having the whole story of his career set down by so fair a friend." William Allen White in Books, 1927.

Balmain, Alexandre Antonovich, graf. 92 N129baL

Napoleon in captivity; the reports of Count Balmain, Russian commissioner on the island of St. Helena 1816–1820; tr. and ed., with introduction and notes by Julian Park; illustrated. Century [1927].

Bell, Gertrude Lowthian. 92 B411b

The letters of Gertrude Bell; selected and ed. by Lady Bell. 2v. Boni, 1927.

"Miss Gertrude Bell, one of the King-makers of Iraq perhaps the most powerful of all those whose influence brought King Faisal safely to the throne—was among the most remarkable women of our time. Her versatility, her vivacity, her energy, her wit, her consuming interest in life, express themselves...in her letters and explain her personality...The second volume is entirely taken up with Miss Bell's work in Baghdad and the building up of Iraq." Spectator, 1927.

Benson, Edward Frederic. 92 D786be

Sir Francis Drake. Harper, 1927. (The golden hind series.)

Maps on lining-papers.
Bibliography: p.306–308.
A lively and sincere account, not only of the epoch-making struggle with the Spaniards at the time of the defeat of the Armada, but also of Drake's early life and discoveries. Adapted from New statesman, 1927.

Bradford, Gamaliel, *b.*1863. 92 M874b

D. L. Moody; a worker in souls. Doran [c1927].

"Books by D. L. Moody": p.305; "Books biographical and critical": p.306–308.
"Mr. Bradford's task...was to build up a personality from the fragmentary data which Dwight L. Moody left behind him, and he has done it carefully and with extraordinary analytical skill, dividing his book not into chronological divisions, but into chapters that exhaust aspects of Moody. Thus we have the growth of a soul, Moody's attitude on heaven and hell, Moody the preacher, Moody in his relationship to Ira D. Sankey, Moody the man, Moody the man of business and Moody the molder of souls." Herbert Gorman in Books, 1927.

Broun, Heywood. 92 C738b

Anthony Comstock, roundsman of the Lord; illustrated. A. & C. Boni, 1927.

Some of the chapters were written by Margaret Leech.
Bibliography: p.277–280.
Comstock (1844–1915), as special agent and secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice and as post-office inspector, attained prominence by his vigorous crusade against such books, papers, pictures, and establishments as he considered injurious to the public morals.
This well documented account of his life "is told with sympathy, humor and much judgment by the authors. The epilogue by Mr. Broun on censorship fairly sums up the more advanced modern opinion on the subject". Independent, 1927.

Chaliapin, Feodor Ivanovitch. 92 C3522c

Pages from my life; an autobiography (authorized translation by H. M. Buck); rev., enl., and ed. by Katharine Wright. Harper, 1927.

The account of the great Russian singer's career from his early days of poverty in a Russian village to his triumphs in the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Conrad, Joseph. 92 C755con

Joseph Conrad, life and letters, by G. Jean-Aubry. 2v. Doubleday, 1927.

Bibliography: v.2, p.[349]–361.
After M. Jean-Aubry's account of Conrad's early years, which covers the first half of volume one, the letters are presented with a minimum of editorial comment. They were written during the course of thirty years and are most of them addressed to Conrad's literary friends, Edward Garnett, Cunninghame-Graham, Galsworthy, and others.

Drinkwater, John, b. 1882. 92 C892d

S. A. [1923.]

Hapgood, Norman, & Moskowitz, Henry. 92 S6421h

Up from the city streets: Alfred E. Smith; a biographical study in contemporary politics; illustrated. Harcourt [c1927].

In this account of Governor Smith's long and distinguished career in New York politics, the authors' chief aim has been to show the Governor to be equally "remarkable for his conception of what a government ought to be" and "for his ability to carry out that conception". There is also included something of the personal background and qualities of the man.

Himrod, James Lattimore. qr 92 C368h

Johnny Appleseed; the true story of Jonathan Chapman, 1775–18—; by the grandson, one who knew him well. Chicago Historical Soc., 1926.

Books for the Blind

The Library has a collection of about 5,000 books and 5 periodicals for the blind. The Pennsylvania Home Teaching Society and Free Circulating Library for the Blind support in this district a teacher, herself totally blind, who, under the direction of this Library, visits the adult blind in their homes and teaches them to read. This service and the use of the books are absolutely free to all adult blind in Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania and the director requests that names and addresses of such persons be sent to him in order that the teacher may call upon them.

Borrowers. Any resident or taxpayer of Pittsburgh is entitled to borrow books upon registering at the Library and receiving a borrower's card.

A non-resident may secure a borrower's card upon payment of one dollar a year in advance, provided he calls at the Library for books desired. If books are to be delivered to the borrower, a fee of three dollars is charged, and a deposit of two dollars to cover mail or express charges. A non-resident may have a borrower's card without payment of a fee if he is employed in or attending school in the city.

A temporary resident may borrow books after making a deposit of five dollars, or more if deemed desirable.

Use of Borrowers' Cards. A borrower may use his card at the Central Library and all its Branches.

Each borrower is responsible for all books charged on his card and for all fines incurred for books charged thereon.

Change of residence should be reported to the Library immediately.

Lost cards should be reported to the Library immediately. Adult cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss. Juvenile cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss, upon payment of a fine of five cents.

Issue and Renewal of Books. Holders of adult cards may borrow ten books and two current magazines at one time. Four of the books may be fiction. Holders of juvenile cards may borrow two juvenile books at one time.

Books, other than some popular new ones, may be kept two weeks, and may be once renewed for two weeks provided there is no request waiting. Current magazines and certain popular new books may be kept one week and are not renewable.

Requests for renewal may be made in person, by mail, or by telephone. In each case the call number of the book, the number of the borrower's card, and the date on which the book is due must be given.

Reserving Books. Books may be reserved by payment of one cent for a postal card notice which will be mailed as soon as the book is available. The book will be held three days. Requests for reserves may be made by telephone, in which case the cost of the postal card will be collected when the borrower calls for the book.

Fines. A fine of two cents a day, including Sundays and holidays, must be paid on each book kept overtime. The fine for children under 14 years of age is one cent a day for each book.

The borrower must pay for books lost or injured while charged on his card. No books may be borrowed while fines and claims for damages are unpaid.

No claim is accepted because of failure of the Post Office to deliver notices to or from the Library.

Fiction

Bennett, Arnold. B439v

The Vanguard; a fantasia. Doran.

The story opens with the abduction of a British plutocrat, who, with a young woman, his companion at the moment, is detained aboard the yacht "Vanguard", owned by a millionaire baron. Their subsequent adventures while cruising about the Mediterranean are gay and amusing.

Brennan, Frederick Hazlitt. B729g

God got one vote. Simon.

A political story, telling of one Patrick Van Hoos who, from a hod-carrier, rose to be the most powerful "boss" of his city.

Brown, Beth. B7833b

Ballyhoo! Dial Press.

A blue-blooded Southern girl runs away from her own wedding and joins a carnival show. She finds the life exciting and fascinating, with Broadway ahead as a goal, and Nick there to protect and encourage her.

Dixelius, Hildur. D6473m

The minister's daughter; tr. from the Swedish by A. C. Settergren, with a foreword by Edward Garnett. Dutton.

"The scene is laid in the Lapland of the early eighteenth century, and the central character, Sara Alelia, is a woman who, having at the outset of the story surrendered to an illicit passion, is doomed to much misery and hardship...The reactions of all the characters to the events that determine the course of their lives have about them the note of inevitability." Saturday review, 1926.

Dodd, Catherine Isabel. D6664c

Clad in purple mist. Doran.

"The heroine, a true Victorian, keeps faith with a disgraced sweetheart, works for him and eventually restores him to honour and happiness. Many of the scenes are set in the Isle of Man, and the book incorporates naturally and pleasingly much of the old-time lore of the little, fiercely-independent island." Spectator, 1925.

Ervine, St. John Greer. E788w

The wayward man. Macmillan.

Robert Dunwoody, the youngest child of a widow keeping a small shop in a poor street in Belfast, after a wayward childhood and youth, escapes as a stowaway to Glasgow and follows the sea, leading a life of varied adventure before his return home.

Feuchtwanger, Lion. F4352u

The ugly duchess; tr. by Willa and Edwin Muir. Viking Press.

"A panorama of the fourteenth century in Middle Europe...Its amazingly original central figure, Margarete, Countess of Tyrol, called Maultasch (sack-mouth), because of her inconceivable ugliness, is unforgettable...Margarete is an epitome of her age and through her and her grievous career the reader observes the death throes of the Middle Ages, the passing of the reign of the barons in their lofty castles and the adumbration of the renaissance that is knocking at the door, the era of the towns and cultivated fields." Herbert Gorman in Books, 1928.

Garnett, David. G1913s

The Sailor's Return; with a frontispiece by R. A. Garnett. Knopf.

"William Targett, a sailor, takes a tavern in Dorset and settles there with a black wife from Africa, and a black baby. The rustics make things unpleasant for Tulip, his wife...There is even definite mischief-making." Spectator, 1925.

Georgian stories, 1927; ed. by Arthur Waugh. Putnam. G3125g

Contents.—Sea view [by] Martin Armstrong.—Juxtapositions [by] Stacy Aumonier.—The hands of Serge David [by] J. D. Beresford.—The grasshopper [by] Gerald Bullett.—The later life of Theseus, king of Athens [by] Mary Butts.—Silver circus [by] A. E. Coppard.—The mistake [by] E. M. Gilbert, Vivian. G3843w

The way of romance. Appleton.

A young Englishman struggling to make his way on the stage in New York is, through a misunderstanding, introduced to New York society as a lord, and has much trouble to live down the subsequent scandal and win a right to claim the girl he has come to love.

Grey, Zane. G8872f

Forlorn River; a romance. Harper.

"Besides the thunderings of the wild horses, 'Forlorn River' is filled with the machinations of cattle thieves and the struggle of a strong man for regeneration and the love of his childhood sweetheart." America, 1927.

Hart, Mrs. Frances (Noyes). H316b

The Bellamy trial. Doubleday.

A mystery story.

Hunt, Leigh. H939t

Tales, now first collected, with a prefatory memoir by William Knight. Paterson. (Treasure house of tales by great authors.)

Contents.—The Florentine lovers.—The beau miser, and what happened to him at Brighton.—Jack Abbott's breakfast.—Galgano and Madonna Minoccia.—The nurture of Triptolemus.—The fair revenge.—Ver-Vert; or, The parrot of the nuns.—The adventures of Cephalus and Procris.—The day of the disasters of Carfington Blundell, esquire.—The shoemaker of Veyros.—Ronald of the perfect hand.—The daughter of Hippocrates.—Godiva.—The Italian girl.—The true story of Vertumnus and Pomona.—The destruction of the Cenci family.—Pulci.—Farinetta and Farinonna; or, How to make five pleasures of one, and be in five places at once.—A year of honeymoons.—A tale for a chimney corner.—Charles Brandon and Mary, queen of France.—Gilbert! Gilbert!—The mountain of the two lovers.—The hamadryad.—A novel party.—The bull-fight.—The marriage of Belphegor.—The generous women.

McSpadden, Joseph Walker. M226fa

Famous dogs in fiction. Crowell.

Contents.—The dog in literature.—Rab and his friends, by John Brown.—A dog of Flanders; adapted from the story by Louisa de la Ramée ("Ouida").—Bill Sikes and his dog; adapted from "Oliver Twist", by Charles Dickens.—Dora Copperfield's "Jip"; adapted from "David Copperfield", by Charles Dickens.—Rip Van Winkle and his dog, from "The sketch book", by Washington Irving.—Dandie Dinmont and his terriers; adapted from "Guy Mannering", by Sir Walter Scott.—Stories of my dogs, from "Stories for children", by L. N. Tolstoi.—Bob, son of Battle; adapted from the story by Alfred Ollivant.—Beautiful Joe; adapted from the story by Marshall Saunders.

Mason, Alfred Edward Woodley. M448n

No other tiger. Doran.

A mystery story.

Merrick, Leonard. M6395v

Violet Moses. Dutton.

One of Mr. Merrick's earliest books, never before published in the United States. He tries to deal with large and poignant themes -marriage between Gentile and Jew, and love outside wedlock. All his personages are sharply realized and drawn and he completes a really felicitous picture of a Victorian girl of strong will and high character, who faces life bravely and amid many vicissitudes shows herself to be both very human and very good. Adapted from Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Miln, Mrs. Louise (Jordan). M7122r

Ruben and Ivy Sên. Stokes.

"Ruben Sên is the son of Ruby Sên...whose own story was told in 'Mr. and Mrs. Sên.' Ruben, English in appearance, is Chinese in mind and heart. Ivy, his sister, has a Chinese face, which she hates, for under the skin she is all English. The two conflicting natures are the ironic results of the blood mixture that came of the marriage of Sên King-Lo and Ruby Gilbert, the English girl. From these conflicts, and the pain and anxiety of the watching mother, Mrs. Miln has constructed a strong novel." J. J. McLaughlin in Literary review, 1925.

Mitchell, John Ames. M748pi

The pines of Lory. Life Pub. Co.

Murray, William Henry Harrison. M979ad

Adirondack tales. Murray Lyceum Bureau.

Nicolson, Harold George. N3272s

Some people. Houghton.

Contents.—Miss Plimsoll.—J. D. Marstock.—Lambert Orme.—The Marquis de Chaumont.—Jeanne de Hénaut.—Titty.—Professor Malone.—Arketall.—Miriam Codd.

Ficticious character sketches, in most of which the British Foreign office supplies the background and real personages appear as minor characters.

O'Higgins, Harvey Jerrold. O183c

Clara Barron. Harper.

"Mr. O'Higgins gives us an intensive study of one woman from infancy to death, and with a psychological expertness which is none the less impressive for never being paraded, explains why she makes an inglorious failure of life...It is an analysis of the emotional inhibitions, the temperamental defects, that can bring a strong character to grief." Allan Nevins in Saturday review of literature, 1926.

Owen, John, b. 1878. O3422g

The giant of Oldborne. Houghton.

"A gentle tale of last century about a rustic hero whose enormous height was at once a tragedy and his means of livelihood as 'freak' in a travelling show. He loved unhappily, but with chivalrous fidelity." Spectator, 1926.

The scene is laid chiefly in Suffolk.

Parrish, Randall. P262mL

My lady of the South; a story of the Civil War. Burt.

Sabatini, Rafael. S113n

The nuptials of Corbal, with illustrations by Harold Brett. Houghton.

A short novel of the French Revolution—the story of a lovely young girl who is smuggled out of Paris by a rascally deputy from whom she escapes, finding refuge with an honest aristocrat.

Smith, Sheila Kaye-. S659ir

Iron and smoke. Dutton.

"Here is the industrial north with its moors, blast furnaces, smoking chimneys, harsh straggling towns and a heroine whose father is an ironmaster; here also is the agricultural south, where farms and ancient estates nourish a different breed of folk and from whence Sir Humphrey Mallard has left his Elizabethan manor to purchase a wealthy bride and thus ease his estates from the burden of mortgages... It is a story, essentially, of two women and a man who has never given himself to either, though he has taken from them what he wanted." Harrison Smith in Books, 1928.

Tarkington, Newton Booth. T212cL

Claire Ambler. Doubleday.

"Claire Ambler, as one of her admirers once told her, was a person who liked to have men fall in love with her, but who did not like to have them trouble her by telling her so. Claire's career was a long procession of the men who loved her. Some told her. Some did not." R. B. Sanborn in Books, 1928.

The story is told in three episodes, set on the Maine coast, at Raona on the Mediterranean, and in New York.

Train, Arthur Cheney. T684w

When Tutt meets Tutt. Scribner.

Contents.—The doodle bug.—The viking's daughter.—The meanest man.—The scarecrow.—When Tutt meets Tutt.

Wilder, Thornton Niven. W716b

The bridge of San Luis Rey; illustrated by Amy Drevenstedt. A. & C. Boni.

"Consists of five stories, the lives of the five people who were killed when a bridge broke in eighteenth-century Lima... The author shows how each life was spiritually over when the accident came and how all the characters were, even though not acquainted, really dependent on each other. It is a subtle idea admirably worked out and leaves a vivid impression of society in the golden age of the most aristocratic capital of Latin America." Cyril Connolly in New statesman, 1927.

Foreign Fiction

Derennes, Charles. 843 D44

Le bestiaire sentimental III: Emile et les autres.

Messina, Maria. 853 M64p

Books and bidders; the adventures of a bibliophile; with illustrations. Little, 1927.

The first eight chapters appeared in the "Saturday evening post", 1927, the ninth, in the "Atlantic monthly", Oct. 1927.

"These essays...deal with the joys and sorrows of the book-buyer and collector (for Mr. Rosenbach's own collection is of no negligible proportions)...A multitude of experiences in Europe and America—in libraries, English mansions, auction rooms—told with gusto and a good memory make entertainment for the reader. And throughout one feels that the writer has a very real feeling for the books he talks of...But it is after all the auction room and the mart which predominate." Carl Rollins in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Standing room only? Century [1927].

"Two distinctive features mark off this volume from the bulk of the books in the general field of population. The first is the notable emphasis on death as a factor in population growth...The contrast which he brings out between ancient and medieval mortality on the one hand, and the modern extension of the life span on the other hand ...justifies his insistence that the population problem of today is a new problem...The other distinctive feature is the author's frank and unrestrained espousal of that solution of the problem represented by the birth control movement." H. P. Fairchild in Survey, 1927.

Bibliografía: p.[295]–299.

Dawson, George Francis. 92 L776d

Life and services of Gen. John A. Logan, as soldier and statesman. Clarke, 1887.

Dickens, Charles. qr 92 D551d

The unpublished letters of Charles Dickens to Mark Lemon; ed. by Walter Dexter. Halton, 1927.

Contains 82 hitherto unpublished letters from the collection of Mr. Gabriel Wells, and many other letters from Dickens to Lemon and others, covering the period from 1847 to 1870. These are presented in the editor's detailed account of the various amateur theatrical enterprises which held so great a part in the life of Dickens and which brought him into close friendship with Lemon, the first editor of "Punch". The book contains eight playbills and six facsimiles of letters.

[Faur, Louis François.] 92 R421f

The private life of the Marshal Duke of Richelieu; tr. by F. S. Flint, with an introduction by Richard Aldington. Brentano [1927]. (Broadway library of eighteenth-century French literature.)

Bibliography: p.4–5.

Franklin, Benjamin. 92 F879fri

"My dear girl": the correspondence of Benjamin Franklin with Polly Stevenson, Georgiana and Catherine Shipley, by J. M. Stifler. Doran [c1927].

The correspondence with Polly Stevenson, covering the years from 1758 to 1786, makes up the larger part of the book. Nearly half of the letters in the Shipley section are from the original unpublished documents. The letters are presented with considerable biographical comment.

Jackson, Mrs. Mary Anna (Morrison). 92 J126ja

Life and letters of General Thomas J. Jackson (Stonewall Jackson); with an introduction by H. M. Field. Harper, 1892.

Johnson, Gerald White. 92 J123jo

Andrew Jackson; an epic in homespun. Minton, 1927.

"In the main Mr. Johnson's narrative follows accepted lines...[It] is well proportioned and adjusted... And what perhaps counts most, there is an unflagging vivacity in the touch which gives life to the major and minor figures." Gamaliel Bradford in Books, 1927.

Lester, Charles Edwards. 92 H838L

Life and achievements of Sam Houston, hero and statesman. Hurst, c1883.

Mackie, John Milton. r 92 S299m

Life of Schamyl, and narrative of the Circassian war of independence against Russia. Jewett, 1856.

Marsh, Josiah. 92 F852m

A popular life of George Fox, the first of the Quakers; compiled from his journal and other authentic sources, and interspersed with remarks upon the imperfect reformation of the Anglican church, and the consequent spread of dissent. Longstreth [1847?]

Maurois, André. 92 B342ma

Disraeli; a picture of the Victorian age; tr. by Hamish Miles. Appleton, 1928.

Bibliography: p.x–xiii.

Beneath a simple and apparently naïve style Maurois has probed to the roots. His account is historically accurate and yet more vivid than a great novel. Every biographer has a theory of Disraeli. In Maurois's account he is represented primarily as an inveterate sentimentalist. The world of imagination is more real to him than the actual world. Nothing matters but to act out a grand rôle and to act it artistically. One finishes Maurois's biography with a deep affection for him. Condensed from A. L. Sachar in Books, 1928.

Mazade-Percin, Charles de. 92 C296mz

The life of Count Cavour, from the French. Putnam, 1877.

Newman, Ernest. 92 B383ne

The unconscious Beethoven; an essay in musical psychology. Knopf, 1927.

The first part is biographical.

"The second portion...dealing with Beethoven, the composer, contains a painstaking analysis of the details of his constructive workmanship. Mr. Newman lays much stress...upon the manner in which Beethoven's unconscious mind tended to crystallize certain definite and reiterated procedures." E. B. Hill in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

O'Flaherty, Liam. 92 H3843o

The life of Tim Healy. Harcourt [c1927].

"List of books consulted": p.[319]; "Bibliography of the works of T. M. Healy": p.[320.]

"Timothy Michael Healy, Governor General of the Irish Free State...has probably seen more of the high lights of British and Irish politics these last fifty years than any other man now living...Of all the rich characters whom that half-century of politics produced...Healy was one of the most colorful, vivid, emotional, sensitive, scabrous, witty, cunning, able...This biography is a wholly personal production, and many will refuse to take seriously the undistilled opinion with which it teems." Sean O'Faolain in New republic, 1928.

Peck, Walter Edwin. 92 S545pe

Shelley, his life and work. 2v. Houghton, 1927.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

Starr, John William. 92 L715stb

Lincoln & the railroads; a biographical study. Dodd, 1927.

Bibliography: p.[297]–311.

"A considerable assemblage of material touching on Lincoln's contacts with the railroads...A good book, a valuable contribution, but we look in vain for any grasp of the merciless logic on the railroad question that beset the mind of Lincoln as well as other minds of statesmanlike quality in the decade preceding the War Between the States." Carl Sandburg in Books, 1927.

Health, wealth, and population in the early days of the industrial revolution. Routledge, 1926.

Bibliography: p.[275]–283.

"Taking for her text the sudden and apparently inexplicable growth in the population which took place in the period of which she specifically treats, Miss Buer explores the whole of that transitional time which links the modern world to the Middle Ages; and the result of her luminous and well-documented investigation is to prove that the early years of the Industrial Revolution were not as is generally supposed years of enforced social degradation, but of rapid advance not only in industrial and agricultural technique, but also in science and medicine, in practical philanthropy and social betterment." *F. Touring England by road and byway; with illustrations by the author and from photographs. Scribner, 1927.

"A series of specimen tours...[which] have been personally studied and recorded over a number of years of exploration by car or cycle, and on foot...The method has been to avoid main roads and well-known routes...The aim of this book being to aid in promoting the spirit of leisurely rambling, it is intended for the saunterer a-wheel or a-foot." Preface.

Knight, Edgar Wallace. 914.89 K34

Among the Danes. University of North Carolina Press, 1927. (North Carolina University. Social study series.)

"While the author was on leave of absence in Denmark during the school year 1925–26 working as a research fellow of the Social Science Research Council, most of the chapters appeared as articles in various Sunday papers in North Carolina; and in their revision they have not lost their popular character. They are colorful and informal discussions and descriptions of many aspects of life in Denmark, to some of which the casual visitor could not hope to be introduced." American journal of sociology, 1927.

Meier-Graefe, Julius Alfred. 914.6 M57

The Spanish journey; tr. by J. Holroyd-Reece, with drawings by J. Sima, and nine plates after paintings by El Greco. Harcourt [1926?]

"When the original edition of the book was published [1910], it caused a sufficient sensation on account of his attack on Velasquez. It is difficult, however, to realize today how startled the art critics were to find Meier-Graefe announcing El Greco as one of the greatest masters of all time...Intermittent sections of the book are devoted to the painters mentioned above, but the author spent most of his six months in Spain outside the galleries and museums and he introduces us to all manner of people and places...Written in the form of a diary." Translator's preface.

Rockwell, Joel Edson. 914 R58

New York is not America; being a mirror to the states. A. & C. Boni, 1927.

"He has looked about this country with more zest and curiosity than any other Englishman of our day, and he finds here not merely stimulus for himself, not merely promise in general, but an actual intellectual movement that is more vivid, he thinks, than exists anywhere else in the world...In a series of animated chapters he recounts the items of his pleasure in this 'art center of Anglo-Saxondom' [New York]...Of...the America that is not New York, Mr. Ford speaks more briefly but not with too much antagonism." Van Wyck Brooks in Books, 1928.

Saxon, Lyle. 917.7 S27

Father Mississippi. Century [c1927].

Bibliography: p.417–418.

"More than anything written since Mark Twain's 'Life on the Mississippi' it conveys the power and glamour and terror of the river...Down that turbid stream pour the hosts. There are explorers, pioneers, soldiers, traders, river-rats, raftmen, steamboaters...More than a third of the book is devoted to a history of the floods with which from time to time the Mississippi has mocked the efforts to subdue it, and especially, the flood of last spring. This account is splendidly effective, but we could have spared it for more chapters about the plantation of Mr. Saxon's boyhood or a still more extensive panorama of the great days." Bernard De Voto in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Delaisi, Francis. 940.93 D38

Political myths and economic realities. Viking Press, 1927.

"Deals with the conflict between the idea of political independence and the facts of economic interdependence...The idea of nationalism, M. Delaisi maintains, is an agrarian myth, more or less consciously developed and utilized by nineteenth century rulers ...Strongly imbued with syndicalist ideas, M. Delaisi finds the machinery of interdependence already developing itself in the world where men work rather than in that where they think." H. R. Mussey in Books, 1928.

Weale, B. L. Putnam (pseud. of Bertram Lenox Simpson). 951 W35v

The vanished empire. Macmillan, 1926.

In the first section the history of China is outlined with dramatic brilliance, but the author's fondness for ex cathedra statements leads him to sweep aside all doubts on a number of questions which are far from being settled. The last section is a diary full of interesting comment on men and events. Here the author reveals himself as an uncompromising advocate of the policy of the big stick, who deplores the lost opportunity for intervention. Adapted from G. H. Danton in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Books for the Blind

The Library has a collection of about 5,000 books and 5 periodicals for the blind. The Pennsylvania Home Teaching Society and Free Circulating Library for the Blind support in this district a teacher, herself totally blind, who, under the direction of this Library, visits the adult blind in their homes and teaches them to read. This service and the use of the books are absolutely free to all adult blind in Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania and the director requests that names and addresses of such persons be sent to him in order that the teacher may call upon them.

Borrowers. Any resident or taxpayer of Pittsburgh is entitled to borrow books upon registering at the Library and receiving a borrower's card.

A non-resident may secure a borrower's card upon payment of one dollar a year in advance, provided he calls at the Library for books desired. If books are to be delivered to the borrower, a fee of three dollars is charged, and a deposit of two dollars to cover mail or express charges. A non-resident may have a borrower's card without payment of a fee if he is employed in or attending school in the city.

A temporary resident may borrow books after making a deposit of five dollars, or more if deemed desirable.

Use of Borrowers' Cards. A borrower may use his card at the Central Library and all its Branches.

Each borrower is responsible for all books charged on his card and for all fines incurred for books charged thereon.

Change of residence should be reported to the Library immediately.

Lost cards should be reported to the Library immediately. Adult cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss. Juvenile cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss, upon payment of a fine of five cents.

Issue and Renewal of Books. Holders of adult cards may borrow ten books and two current magazines at one time. Four of the books may be fiction. Holders of juvenile cards may borrow two juvenile books at one time.

Books, other than some popular new ones, may be kept two weeks, and may be once renewed for two weeks provided there is no request waiting. Current magazines and certain popular new books may be kept one week and are not renewable.

Requests for renewal may be made in person, by mail, or by telephone. In each case the call number of the book, the number of the borrower's card, and the date on which the book is due must be given.

Reserving Books. Books may be reserved by payment of one cent for a postal card notice which will be mailed as soon as the book is available. The book will be held three days. Requests for reserves may be made by telephone, in which case the cost of the postal card will be collected when the borrower calls for the book.

Fines. A fine of two cents a day, including Sundays and holidays, must be paid on each book kept overtime. The fine for children under 14 years of age is one cent a day for each book.

The borrower must pay for books lost or injured while charged on his card. No books may be borrowed while fines and claims for damages are unpaid.

No claim is accepted because of failure of the Post Office to deliver notices to or from the Library.

Publications of the Library Now in Print

Prices. Where two prices are given, the first is that for which the publication is sold at the Library only. All prices are strictly net, except for individual publications ordered in lots of twenty or more. Remittances must be made in advance, payable to Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. All publications not marked * may be had free at the Library, or will be sent postpaid for 5 cents each.

Fiction

Adams, Andy. A211ra

The ranch on the Beaver; with illustrations by Edward Borein. Houghton.

Sequel to "Wells brothers, the young cattle kings".

Andrews, Mary Raymond Shipman. A568t

The three things; the forge in which the soul of a man was tested. Little.

The three things which Philip Landicutt, a wealthy young American, loses when he throws himself into the midst of the fighting in Belgium are class pride, race prejudice, and religious unbelief.

Bedford-Jones, Henry. B374k

The king's passport. Putnam.

A story of 17th century France, in which such famous characters as Cyrano de Bergerac and M. d'Artagnan become involved in Cinq-Mars's conspiracy against Richelieu.

Bennett, Mrs. Dorothy (Graham). B4393f

The French wife. Stokes.

An American girl, who had successfully adjusted herself to the requirements of the wife of a French aristocrat, is confronted, after his death, with the necessity of deciding whether she shall continue to be French.

Brandon, John G. B698j

The joy ride. Dial Press.

Three young Englishmen and an American, lacking serious occupation, set forth gaily on a series of adventures that lead them into unforeseen complications and draw the attention of the London and New York police.

Cannon, Mrs. Cornelia (James). C1732r

Red rust. Little.

Pictures the lives of a group of Swedish immigrants on a Minnesota farm.

Erskine, John. E786a

Adam and Eve; though he knew better. Bobbs.

"The most malicious and most impartial in its satire of Mr. Erskine's three novels. If it gives an honest picture of woman as man sees her, it likewise gives an honest picture of man as, in moments of exceptional lucidity, he is likely to see himself. The palm goes, of course, to Lilith, who represents woman as man would like her to be." Lloyd Morris in Books, 1927.

Golding, Louis. G583m

The miracle boy; with interpretations in black and white by Herbert Gurschner. Knopf.

"In a lonely village of the Tyrolean mountains, a traveller finds painted on houses and carved on door posts the likeness of a yellow-haired youth with wild blue eyes... Gradually the traveller pieces together the quasi-legendary story of this youthful miracle-worker, Hugo Harpf, and of Hansl, his raven—the strange and beautiful tale of one whom his simple fellow villagers accepted as a second Christ." Robert Nathan in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Green, Julien. G829a

Avarice house; tr. from the French by M. A. Best. Harper.

The tragic story of three generations of women living in a dreary mansion in Northern Virginia. In each some vice becomes an uncontrollable obsession—in Mrs. Fletcher it is avarice, in the grandmother, hatred, and in young Emily Fletcher, a lust for possession that makes her relation to her mother one of bitter strife. The author is a young American brought up in Europe.

Grierson, Francis D. G8912s

The smiling death. Clode.

A mystery story.

Hay, Ian (pseud. of Ian Hay Beith). H3683po

The poor gentleman. Houghton.

A mystery story.

Hueffer, Ford Madox. H8891g

The good soldier; a tale of passion. A. & C. Boni.

"In the beginning of this novel Dowell writes: 'This is the saddest story I have ever heard.' For seven years he has sacrificed himself to a wife whom he has believed to have a weak heart. When she dies he finds that nothing was wrong with her except her character...all the while she and the man he thought his friend have been deceiving him...Dowell gives his reminiscences in broken and spasmodic gusts. Gradually the accusations and confessions take shape, and all the while we are made to feel the frightful misery of the man who is supposed to be talking." Saturday review, 1915.

Hueffer, Ford Madox. H8891L

The last post; a novel. A. & C. Boni.

Closes the series formed by his "Some do not", "No more parades", and "A man could stand up—".

Mark Tietjens, Christopher's brother, bedridden and speechless from a stroke, is the central figure, and it is chiefly through his thoughts that the picture is drawn of Christopher and Valentine in an English village, conducting an antique furniture business, and of Sylvia's annoyance and her attempts to reach them through her son Mark and an American woman, Mrs. de Bray Pape.

Hurst, Fannie. H953p

A president is born. Harper.

An account of the boyhood life and background of a future president of the United States. Sprung from the Schuylers, a sturdy family still half-foreign in the older generation, he grows up in a town of the Middle West.

Lagerlöf, Selma. L152c

Charlotte Löwensköld; tr. from the Swedish by V. S. Howard. Doubleday.

"The story of a girl's love for a misguided young man who does not prove himself worthy of it...Selma Lagerlöf has set this story in the Sweden of a century ago, yet it never for a minute wears an old-fashioned or 'period' air. Its people are abundantly alive with the problems and emotions of an unpredictable world." New York times, 1927.

Nathan, Robert. N155w

The woodcutter's house. Bobbs.

A whimsical fantasy, telling of Metabel who, with Musket, the fiddler's little dog, left Barly to go up on Hemlock, and came instead to the woodcutter's house.

Oppenheim, Edward Phillips. O265Li

The light beyond. Little.

A tale of international intrigue during a conference of world powers in London.

Parks, Leighton. P247t

Turnpikes and dirt roads. Scribner.

An autobiographical novel of the South in the years just before and during the Civil War, showing the influence of the period on the life of a small boy.

Payne, Mrs. Elizabeth Stancy. P333h

Hearthstones. Penn Pub. Co.

The story of a modern family, with a home-loving daughter who wins the happiness scorned by her butterfly sister.

Phillips, Mrs. Marie (Tello). P514s

Stella Marvin. Vinal.

Recounts the life of Stella from her girlhood in the late '90's. Written by a Pittsburgh author.

Scarborough, Dorothy. S285i

Impatient Griselda. Harper.

"Irene has only a second place in the life of a husband who married her after the death of Lilith in order to give his baby a mother. Outwardly Patient Griselda through the long years of accepting kindliness in place of love, in the end Irene has the agony of seeing stretch out before her daughter a bondage similar to her own...The book is both spacious and gracious, it abounds with 'homely' characters and familiar incidents." Gladys Graham in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Scott, Will. S4312s

Shadows. Macrae.

A mystery story.

Simpson, Helen. S6132c

Cups, wands, & swords. Knopf.

"Framed in a prophecy of gypsy cards...reflects the story of a group of young people in London, chief among them Anthony and his twin sister, Celia, and Philip." Mary Ross in Books, 1928.

Society of Arts and Sciences, New York city. S678oh8

O. Henry memorial award; prize stories of 1927, with an introduction by B. C. Williams. Doubleday.

Contents.—Child of God, by Roark Bradford.—The killers, by Ernest Hemingway.—The scarlet woman, by Louis Bromfield.—Jukes, by Bill Adams.—Fear, by J. W. Bellah.—Night club, by Katharine Brush.—Singing woman, by A. J. Carver.—With glory and honour, by E. C. Chapman.—Bulldog, by Roger Daniels.—He man, by M. S. Douglas.—"Done got over", by Alma and Paul Ellerbe.—Monkey motions, by E. M. Kelly.—Four dreams of Gram Perkins, by Ruth Sawyer.—The little girl from town, by Ruth Suckow.—Shades of George Sand! by Ellen du Pois Taylor.

Tourgée, Albion Winegar. T651mu

Murvale Eastman, Christian socialist. Fords.

This novel reflects the industrial conditions of the late 19th century, and seeks in Christian socialism a solution of the problems that arose from the concentration of capital in the hands of a few.

Undset, Sigrid. U255a

The axe; tr. from the Norwegian by A. G. Chater. Knopf. (Her The master of Hestviken.)

"Concerns the childhood, youth and early maturity of Olav Audunson and Ingunn Steinfinnsdatter. The setting is Norway of the thirteenth century." Eugene Lohrke in Books, 1928.

Walpole, Hugh. W1862wi

Wintersmoon. Doubleday.

A novel of present-day English society. The scene is London and that same Wiltshire which knew "the Duchess of Wrexe".

"Chiefly it is concerned with two sisters, Janet and Rosalind, who loved each other and who had been left in comparative poverty but still on the fringe of aristocratic society. One of them was good and noble and the other beautiful and a modernist." Harrison Smith in Books, 1928.

Webster, Henry Kitchell. W383c

The clock strikes two. Bobbs.

A mystery story.

Wilder, Thornton Niven. W716c

The cabala. A. & C. Boni.

"Concerns an amusing and ultimately pathetic group of odd people, perched upon the very pinnacle of the aristocratic society of Rome...They were supposed to possess and exert a vast and mysterious power, social and political, which included Church politics...Nobody knew what secret bond held them together, for outwardly they were extraordinarily diverse." Isabel Paterson in Books, 1926.

Foreign Fiction

Cervantes Saavedra, Miguel de. 853 C33d

Don Chisciotte della Mancia. 2v.

Mann, Thomas. 833 M33u

Unordnung und frühes leid; novelle.

Reinhard, John Revell, & De Filippis, Michael, ed. 853 R31

Aubrey Beardsley, the clown, the harlequin, the pierrot of his age. Simon, 1927.

A biography of the English artist of the '90's and a critical study of his genius.

"Major Macfall, who knew Beardsley and lived through the Beardsley period... sees in the artist a born poseur led astray by the other poseurs and 'jackals' of his day; a great genius who only toward the end of his short life began to find himself and put forth works worthy of his genius." Vincent Starrett in Books, 1928.

Poliakoff, V. 92 A3792p

The tragic bride; the story of the Empress Alexandra of Russia, by V. Poliakoff (Augur). Appleton, 1927.

"Though there were some dramatic phases in her career before the last awful tragedy at Tobolsk, it is chiefly as the devoted wife and mother and the misguided dupe of such fanatics as the sinister Rasputin that she stands out... While he does not disguise her faults, V. Poliakoff writes of her sympathetically." America, 1928.

Schumann, Frau Clara (Wieck), & Brahms, Johannes. 92 S3922s

Borrowers. Any resident or taxpayer of Pittsburgh is entitled to borrow books upon registering at the Library and receiving a borrower's card.

A non-resident may secure a borrower's card upon payment of one dollar a year in advance, provided he calls at the Library for books desired. If books are to be delivered to the borrower, a fee of three dollars is charged, and a deposit of two dollars to cover mail or express charges. A non-resident may have a borrower's card without payment of a fee if he is employed in or attending school in the city.

A temporary resident may borrow books after making a deposit of five dollars, or more if deemed desirable.

Use of Borrowers' Cards. A borrower may use his card at the Central Library and all its Branches.

Each borrower is responsible for all books charged on his card and for all fines incurred for books charged thereon.

Change of residence should be reported to the Library immediately.

Lost cards should be reported to the Library immediately. Adult cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss. Juvenile cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss, upon payment of a fine of five cents.

Issue and Renewal of Books. Holders of adult cards may borrow ten books and two current magazines at one time. Four of the books may be fiction. Holders of juvenile cards may borrow two juvenile books at one time.

Books, other than some popular new ones, may be kept two weeks, and may be once renewed for two weeks provided there is no request waiting. Current magazines and certain popular new books may be kept one week and are not renewable.

Requests for renewal may be made in person, by mail, or by telephone. In each case the call number of the book, the number of the borrower's card, and the date on which the book is due must be given.

Reserving Books. Books may be reserved by payment of one cent for a postal card notice which will be mailed as soon as the book is available. The book will be held three days. Requests for reserves may be made by telephone, in which case the cost of the postal card will be collected when the borrower calls for the book.

Fines. A fine of two cents a day, including Sundays and holidays, must be paid on each book kept overtime. The fine for children under 14 years of age is one cent a day for each book.

The borrower must pay for books lost or injured while charged on his card. No books may be borrowed while fines and claims for damages are unpaid.

No claim is accepted because of failure of the Post Office to deliver notices to or from the Library.

The Pennsylvania Room

The Pennsylvania Room is a new division of the Reference Department, and will be opened in the near future. The room is a commodious one on the second floor of the Library, adjoining the Reference Room. In it will be placed all the histories of Pennsylvania and of the sixty-seven counties in the state; all the histories of Pittsburgh; all books of a descriptive nature relating to the state; maps and atlases of the state, counties, and cities; biographies of Pennsylvanians; all state, county, and city official reports; all legislative reports, journals, and documents; local church histories; local directories; and a large collection of books printed in Pittsburgh before 1860.

It is our desire to complete as far as may be our collection of books by Pittsburgh writers and our collection of music by Pittsburgh composers. Any contributions to these collections, as well as to the other collections in the division, will be most welcome.

At present, and for as long as there is room enough, all the book of genealogy and all the family histories will be kept in this room; and, for the convenience of architects and decorators, as many as possible of the large books in the Bernd Department of Architecture.

It is the plan to admit to the room only those who are working in the fields which these books cover. A large proportion of the books will be readily accessible, and readers may take them from the shelves and use them at the tables. The older and rarer books will be locked in cases. Very rare books will be subject to careful restriction, in order to preserve them for the future. The aim is to make the local history collection more readily available than it has ever been before to all responsible people interested in it, and at the same time to protect and preserve for the future the many rare and almost irreplaceable books now in the collection.

It is our hope, too, that since the City is providing this special room and these greater facilities for the use of the local history collection, our citizens will take such an interest and pride in the room as will lead them not only to make full use of it but to help the Library to acquire needed books which it does not now possess.

In fact, there is substantial proof that there is such an interest in the room, even before it is ready for use. The idea of a Pennsylvania Room first took shape in connection with a meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held in this Library in November 1923. At this time the Library prepared an exhibition of books, maps, documents, and pictures connected with and illustrative of early Pittsburgh. This proved of so much interest, that a permanent local history room has ever since been one of our chief desires. In order to show its appreciation of the importance of this room, the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has taken the initiative in the plan of a special fund for books on local history, and has given the first hundred dollars towards it. Through the Chapter have also come two other gifts of one hundred dollars each from citizens who are greatly interested in the history of Pittsburgh and in the idea of the Pennsylvania Room: one hundred dollars from Mr. Marcellin Coté Adams and Mr. S. Jarvis Adams, Jr. in memory of their mother, Mrs. S. Jarvis Adams; and one hundred dollars from Mrs. Mortimer C. Miller in memory of her father, Thomas McMasters.

This money, and any that may be contributed by others who are interested, the Library agrees to keep as a permanent fund and with the interest to buy, for each hundred dollars given, at least one book a year, the book-plate in which shall bear the name of the donor and also, if the gift is a memorial, the name of the person in whose memory it is given. Thus, in time, many valuable books will be accumulated, in many cases taking the form of a particularly appropriate memorial.

Notice of the opening of the room will be given later in this Bulletin and in the daily papers.

Vacation Book Privileges

Special privileges are offered again this year to regular borrowers at the Library who wish to take books out of town for the summer. The arrangement will take effect the first day of June and is subject to the following conditions:

Not more than ten books may be issued on one card. Six of them may be fiction.

Books will be due October 1, 1928, and from that date a fine of two cents a day will accrue on each. The books may be returned or exchanged any time before the first of October.

Any transportation charges on books returned must be prepaid.

Borrowers will be asked to give their out-of-town addresses.

The borrower's card will be held at the Library.

The Library reserves the right to refuse to lend by this method any books which it seems unwise to take out of general circulation for so long a time.

Any book which is requested by other borrowers may be recalled.

New Publications of the Library

The Library has recently issued a reprint of Ten Years of Daylight Saving: from the Pittsburgh Standpoint, a twenty-eight page pamphlet by Robert Garland, which may be obtained free at the Library or for five cents each postpaid.

Periodicals Recently Added

The following periodicals have recently been added to the list of those regularly received in the Periodical Room:

Air Transportation. New York.
Current Magazine Contents. Wichita, Kansas.
Olive Oil. New York.
Rubber Chemistry and Technology. Easton, Pa.

Books Recently Added to the Library

An r or b prefixed to the call number indicates that the book must be called for and used in the Reference or the Technology Room; j that it is especially suitable for children; and q that it is quarto size or larger.

Fiction

Bailey, Henry Christopher. B159mfo

Mr. Fortune, please. Dutton.

Contents.—The missing husband.—The cat burglar.—The lion party.—The violet farm.—The quiet lady.—The little house.

Detective stories.

Barretto, Larry. B2652o

Old enchantment. Day.

The story of an old New York family—the pathetic struggle of the older generation to preserve the traditions of the past in spite of diminished resources; the effect upon the younger generation of a restricted life, and their efforts to find compensation.

Brunner, Mrs. Emma Beatrice (Kaufman). B835m

"My wife, poor wretch"; uncensored episodes not in the diary of Samuel Pepys. Stokes.

A lively and amusing story with Mrs. Pepys as the heroine.

Connolly, Louise. C7533m

Mrs. Chatterbox and her family; illustrated by Decie Merwin. Macmillan.

Stories of a little Southern girl who lived in Washington a few years after the Civil War.

Galsworthy, John. G157tw

Two Forsyte interludes: A silent wooing; Passers by. Scribner.

In the first of these very brief episodes, Jon Forsyte falls in love with the sister of his host in North Carolina; in the second, Jon and his wife almost meet Fleur, her husband, and her father in Washington. In point of time in relation to the other books of the Forsyte saga, "A silent wooing" comes between "The white monkey" and "The silver spoon"; "Passers by" comes between "The silver spoon" and "Swan song".

Geijerstam, Johan Gustaf af. G279w

Woman power; a novel; tr. from the Swedish by Esther Rapp. Amer.-Scandinavian Foundation. (Scandinavian classics, v.28.)

A sensitive man's unreserved story of his intimate life, as related to a friend. The friend's reflections on the man and his story make clear the author's purpose—to vindicate his belief that a writer may interpret life truly only in the light of his own experience.

Haggard, Sir Henry Rider. H141mon

Montezuma's daughter. Longmans.

Jerrold, Douglas William. J283t

Tales now first collected, with a biographical notice by J. L. Robertson. Paterson. (Treasure house of tales by great authors.)

Contents.—The siege.—The "Lord of Pieresc".—Some account of the last parachute.—The metaphysician and the maid.—Ephraim Rue, the victim of society.—Silas Fleshpots, a "respectable man".—Michael Lynx, "the man who knew himself".—Thuddy Jones, the clever young man.—An old house in the city.—The tulip show.—Shakespeare at Charlecote Park.—The major in the Black-Hole.—The peacock.—The old boatman.—Pope Gregory and the pear-tree.—Swamp Hall; or, The friend of the family.—Cat-and-fiddle moralities.—Twiddlethumb Town.

Little, Richard Henry. L7433b

Better angels; with an introduction by Carl Sandburg. Minton.

A little tale of incidents in Lincoln's life as told by "Mammy Jinny".

MacGrath, Harold. M162ch

The changing road. Doubleday.

A mystery story.

Mottram, Ralph Hale. M9422o

Our Mr. Dormer. Dial Press.

The story concerns the rise to fortune of a provincial Quaker family connected with a banking firm in East Anglia. Beginning in 1813 when Stephen Dormer is head clerk, it follows the vicissitudes of the family and of the firm to the present day.

November night. Bobbs. M7432n

At head of title: By the author of Miss Tiverton goes out and This day's madness.

A year in the life of a sensitive high-strung English girl. In the apathy that followed the death of her lover and the loss of her singing voice she had married a wealthy business man, and now finds herself bitterly restless and discontented, at odds with every one but an unreliable brother.

Shelley, Mrs. Mary Wollstonecraft (Godwin). S545t

Tales and stories now first collected, with an introduction by Richard Garnett. Paterson. (Treasure house of tales by great authors.)

Contents.—The sisters of Albano.—Ferdinando Eboli.—The evil eye.—The dream.—The mourner.—The false rhyme.—A tale of the passions; or, The death of Despina.—The mortal immortal.—Transformation.—The Swiss peasant.—The invisible girl.—The brother and sister.—The parvenue.—The Pole.—Euphrasia.—The elder son.—The pilgrims.

Science

Huntington, Ellsworth. 573.4 H94h

The human habitat. Van Nostrand [c1927].

"Attempt to give the layman a true idea of human geography as interpreted by the American school of geographers. It does not pretend to present the proof of the many conclusions which it sets forth...Nor does it pretend to cover the whole field...It simply selects certain main phases of the subject as illustrations and sets them forth quite fully." Preface.

McFarland, Joseph. 570 M15

Biology, general and medical; with 160 illustrations. Saunders, 1910.

"References" at end of most of the chapters.

Discusses the more important biologic phenomena. Gives more attention than is usual in books of its date, to subjects of interest to physicians and students of medicine.

Menge, Edward John. 570 M62

The laws of living things; with a foreword by R. A. Muttkowski. Bruce Pub. Co. [c1927.]

Bibliography: p.514–516.

Text for high school courses in biology.

Moir, John M. 500 M78

The groundwork of modern science. v.1. Longmans, 1927.

v.1. A two-year course of experimental general science.

Concise introduction to the study of chemistry, biology, and physics, with chief attention to the last named. Includes laboratory experiments and examples.

Mathematics

Brooks, Edward. r 512 B77n

The normal standard algebra, designed for public and private schools, normal schools, academies, etc. Sower [c1909].

Daniels, Farrington. 510 D22

Mathematical preparation for physical chemistry. McGraw, 1928. (International chemical series.)

Bibliography: p.263–264.

Presents essentials of higher mathematics for those preparing to study elementary physical chemistry. Requires only a knowledge of algebra and trigonometry.

Galbraith, Joseph Allen. r 512 G14

Manual of algebra. [Ed.3.] Cassell, 1869. (Galbraith and Haughton's scientific manuals; mathematical series.)

Galbraith, Joseph Allen. r 511 G14

Manual of arithmetic. New ed. Cassell, 1869. (Galbraith and Haughton's scientific manuals; mathematical series.)

Mullins, George Walker, & Smith, D. E. 510 M96

Freshman mathematics. Ginn [c1927].

Intended to be used as an introduction to college mathematics. Includes chapters on logarithms, trigonometry, analytic geometry, calculus, numerical equations, and practical mensuration.

Ramsvig, S. A. r 513 R18

Regneopgaver i plangeometri og stereometri til brug ved høiere og lavere skoler samt for selvundervisning; udarbeidet paa grundlag af L. Mittenzwey "Aufgaben für das geometrische rechnen". [2v.] 1891.

v.2 contains the answers to the exercises, and has title "Besvarelser og opløsninger".

Thomson, James, 1786–1849. r 512 T38

An elementary treatise on algebra, theoretical and practical. Ed.12. Longman, 1860.

Astronomy

Anestin, Victor. 523.7 A57

Se va stinge soarele? soarele după astronomia modernă. 1916. (Biblioteca stiinta pentru toti, no.10.)

Heath, Thomas Edward. r 523.8 H38

The distances, absolute magnitudes, and spectra of about seven hundred stars in eighty equal regions of space, for use with ordinary star maps. [Hodgson, 1917.]

Rambosson, Jean Pierre. r 520 R17

Astronomy; tr. by C. B. Pitman. Chatto, 1878.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

Physics

Bose, Sir Jagadis Chunder. r 530.4 B64

Collected physical papers; with 123 illustrations. Longmans, 1927. (Bose Institute transactions, 1927.)

Collection of 28 papers dating from 1895, a number of which are on the application of physical methods to the study of biological problems. Describes investigations on optical properties of electric waves; characteristics of metallic contact receivers; types of molecular receivers. similarity of response of inorganic and living substances; physiological response of plant; and identity of physiological mechanism in plant and animal.

Bray, F. 535 B71

Light. Arnold [1927].

"Excellent introduction to the study of light for first year students...There are many illustrations from everyday life, the historical aspects of all the fundamental principles are emphasized, and a large number of illustrations and diagrams are employed...There is an elementary introduction to simple harmonic motion, and particularly clear and lucid chapters on interference, diffraction, and polarization." Physical review, 1928.

Graham, Robert Hudson. r 531.2 G77

Graphic and analytic statics in theory and comparison; their practical application to the treatment of stresses in roofs, solid girders, lattice, bowstring and suspension bridges, braced iron arches and piers, and other frameworks; to which is added a chapter on wind pressures; containing diagrams and plates to scale, with numerous examples, many taken from existing structures; specially arranged for class-work in colleges and universities. Lockwood, 1883.

Lorentz, Hendrik Antoon. 530.1 L86

Lectures on theoretical physics, delivered at the University of Leiden; authorized translation by L. Silberstein and A. P. H. Trivelli. v.1. Macmillan, 1927.

"Sources and references" at end of each part.

v.1. Aether theories and aether models, ed. by H. 'Bremekamp.—Kinetical problems, ed. by E. D. Bruins and J. Reudler.

Pynchon, Thomas Ruggles. r 530 P99

Introduction to chemical physics, designed for the use of academies, high schools, and colleges; illustrated with numerous engravings, and containing copious lists of experiments with directions for preparing them. Ed.3, rev. & enl. Van Nostrand, 1881.

Richardson, E. G. 534 R41

Sound; a physical text-book. Longmans, 1927.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

"Well-balanced account of the present state of knowledge in experimental acoustics." Nature, 1927.

Roger, John. r 531.51 R61

The force of gravity. [Publishers Printing Co.] 1925.

Presents briefly author's views on motion of bodies in space and on gravitational force, asserting that "the force of gravity is primarily due to centrifugal forces acting towards the center of the terrestrial rotative system", and that "the so called 'Newtonian theory' of celestial mechanics is entirely wrong in its basic principles".

Wood, De Volson. r 531 W85

The elements of analytical mechanics. Ed.2, rev. & enl. Wiley, 1882.

Chemistry. Crystallography. Mineralogy

Bone, William Arthur, & Townend, D. T. A. q 541.3 B62

Flame and combustion in gases; with 30 plates and diagrams in the text. Longmáns, 1927.

Bibliography at end of each section.

Excellent critical summary of the principal investigations upon the subject from about 1660 to the present. After a concise historical introduction, deals with initiation and development of flame and detonation in gaseous explosions, gaseous explosions in closed vessels, mechanism of gaseous combustion, and catalytic and incandescent surface combustion.

Fischer, Heinrich. r 549.116 F52

Kritische mikroskopisch-mineralogische studien. 1869.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

With this are bound his "Kritische mikroskopisch-mineralogische studien; fortsetzung", 1–2, published in 1871 and 1873.

Rice, Francis Owen. 547 R395

The mechanism of homogeneous organic reactions from the physical-chemical standpoint. Chemical Catalog Co., 1928. (American Chemical Society. Monograph series, no.39.)

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

The same.....r 547 R395

Brings together the scattered literature on the kinetics of organic chemical reactions.

Rinne, Friedrich Wilhelm Berthold. r 548.9 R47

Elementare anleitung zu kristallographisch-optischen untersuchungen vornehmlich mit hilfe des polarisationsmikroskops; mit 368 abbildungen im text und vier tafeln. 1912.

"2. Auflage von 'Das Mikroskop im chemischen Laboratorium'."

Bibliography: p.158.

Simon, William, & Base, Daniel. 540 S59a

A manual of chemistry; a guide to lectures and laboratory work for beginners in chemistry; a text-book specially adapted for students of medicine, pharmacy, and dentistry; 13th ed., enl. & thoroughly rev. by J. C. Krantz; with 55 illustrations, one colored spectra plate, and 6 colored plates representing 48 chemical reactions. Lea, 1927.

Despite its special scope, the field covered is quite comprehensive, but not uniformly up to date. An unusual feature is the series of colored plates showing the colors accompanying various chemical reactions.

Wright, Bryce M'Murdo. r 549.63 W93

Native silica; a treatise upon a series of specimens of quartz, rock crystal, chalcedony, agates, and jaspers, as well as other earthy and metalliferous minerals (economic and decorative), with a chapter upon the formation of agates, cutting, polishing, and staining, with a descriptive catalogue of the specimens forming the collection of the late Earl of Derby, bequeathed by him to the Liverpool Free Museum. Wyman, 1894.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

Geology. Meteorology

Benson, Allan Louis. 550 B44

The story of geology. Cosmopolitan Book Corp., 1927.

Bibliography: p.299–300.

Presents in an interesting manner the principal facts and theories of geology for the layman.

Abraham Lincoln in Peoria, Illinois. Ed.2, enl. [Lincoln Historical Pub. Co., c1926.]

"Speech at Peoria, Illinois, in reply to Senator Douglas, October 16, 1854": p.165–241.

"Mr. Bryner, who was present as a small boy when Lincoln replied to one of Stephen A. Douglas's speeches on the Kansas-Nebraska bill in 1854, offers...details of that important occasion...[Contains] portions of the Douglas address and much data of a local sort." Books, 1927.

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith. 92 S848ch

Robert Louis Stevenson. Dodd, 1928.

"He neither attempts to minimize Stevenson's limitations nor to exalt him with an achievement not his by right; but he is a warm advocate and a stanch defender." Percy Hutchison in New York times, 1928.

r 92 L4223c

Correct story of the romance of Nathan Hale and Alice Adams, by her great-granddaughters. [Poriss, 1927.]

Croce, Benedetto. 92 C8863c

An autobiography; tr. from the Italian by R. G. Collingwood, with a preface by J. A. Smith. Clarendon Press, 1927.

Dimnet, Ernest. 92 B7712d

The Brontë sisters; tr. from the French by L. M. Sill. Cape [1927].

"Monsieur Dimnet's charming book, 'Les Soeurs Brontë,' has been familiar to serious students of English fiction for nearly two decades. It is now translated—and well translated...Its chief importance consists not in the new facts added to the biography of the family, but in the critical view of a Frenchman who knows the subtle combination of the sane and the sympathetic which characterizes the critical writing of his nation... The appendix to this book appears here for the first time. It contains Charlotte Brontë's four letters to M. Héger." Chauncey B. Tinker in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Fausset, Hugh I'Anson. 92 T588f

Tolstoy; the inner drama. Harcourt [1928?]

"Although Tolstoy was a great artist and a great critic of art, he is equally significant to us to-day as the baffled searcher after an art of life. It is as such that I have studied him here, exploring his personality in relation to his art and his life, and examining his doctrine in the light of his personality." Foreword.

Gibson, William. r 92 G3712g

Letters to my son. 3v. Caxton Co., 1917.

Reminiscences of a former railroad official and manufacturer resident in Pittsburgh. The third volume is made up of lectures delivered at the University of Kentucky.

Graves, Robert. 92 L4263g

Lawrence and the Arabs; illustrations edited by Eric Kennington, maps by Herry Perry. Cape [1927].

"Mr. Graves begins with a brief account of Lawrence's early life and a much longer analysis of his character. He concludes with some amusing notes by friends who have met Lawrence in the R. A. F. and elsewhere since his disappearance from public life, and a very interesting letter from Lawrence himself in which he gives his views on a variety of topics...The main body of the book is just a summary of 'The Seven Pillars of Wisdom,' and adds little or nothing to our knowledge of the desert campaigns." Saturday review, 1927.

Hart, Albert Bushnell. r 92 W272ha

George Washington. Amer. Library Assoc., 1927. (Reading with a purpose.)

Rules for Borrowing Books

Hours. The adult Lending Rooms of the Central and Branch Libraries, with the exception of the Business-District Branch, are open daily from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., Sundays and holidays excepted. The Business-District Branch closes at 6 P. M. The Central Children's Room is open daily except Sundays and holidays from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. Wylie Avenue Branch and Homewood Branch Children's Rooms are open week days from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. West End Branch Children's Room is open week days from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Other Branch Children's Rooms are open 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. certain days only, other days from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Borrowers. Any resident or taxpayer of Pittsburgh is entitled to borrow books upon registering at the Library and receiving a borrower's card.

A non-resident may secure a borrower's card upon payment of one dollar a year in advance, provided he calls at the Library for books desired. If books are to be delivered to the borrower, a fee of three dollars is charged, and a deposit of two dollars to cover mail or express charges. A non-resident may have a borrower's card without payment of a fee if he is employed in or attending school in the city.

A temporary resident may borrow books after making a deposit of five dollars, or more if deemed desirable.

Use of Borrowers' Cards. A borrower may use his card at the Central Library and all its Branches.

Each borrower is responsible for all books charged on his card and for all fines incurred for books charged thereon.

Change of residence should be reported to the Library immediately.

Lost cards should be reported to the Library immediately. Adult cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss. Juvenile cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss, upon payment of a fine of five cents.

Issue and Renewal of Books. Holders of adult cards may borrow ten books and two current magazines at one time. Four of the books may be fiction. Holders of juvenile cards may borrow two juvenile books at one time.

Books, other than some popular new ones, may be kept two weeks, and may be once renewed for two weeks provided there is no request waiting. Current magazines and certain popular new books may be kept one week and are not renewable.

Requests for renewal may be made in person, by mail, or by telephone. In each case the call number of the book, the number of the borrower's card, and the date on which the book is due must be given.

Reserving Books. Books may be reserved by payment of one cent for a postal card notice which will be mailed as soon as the book is available. The book will be held three days. Requests for reserves may be made by telephone, in which case the cost of the postal card will be collected when the borrower calls for the book.

Fines. A fine of two cents a day, including Sundays and holidays, must be paid on each book kept overtime. The fine for children under 14 years of age is one cent a day for each book.

The borrower must pay for books lost or injured while charged on his card. No books may be borrowed while fines and claims for damages are unpaid.

No claim is accepted because of failure of the Post Office to deliver notices to or from the Library.

Publications of the Library Now in Print

Prices. Where two prices are given, the first is that for which the publication is sold at the Library only. All prices are strictly net, except for individual publications ordered in lots of twenty or more. Remittances must be made in advance, payable to Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. All publications not marked * may be had free at the Library, or will be sent postpaid for 5 cents each.

The Pennsylvania Room

Since the announcement in last month's Bulletin of this new division of the Reference Department, the room has been finished and opened for use. All who are interested in the history of the state or the city are invited to make full use of this new room. The hours are the same as those of the General Reference Room, from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. on week days and from 2 to 6 P. M. on Sunday.

It is a great pleasure to record the gift of one hundred dollars to the permanent fund for books appropriate for this room from the Allegheny County Committee of the Pennsylvania Society of the Colonial Dames of America.

Gifts of books for the room have come from Mrs. Sumner Boyer Ely, in memory of her father, Thomas Bowdoin Updike; and from Mrs. J. R. Macfarlane, in memory of Ella Porter Gillespie and Eliza Macfarlane Buchanan.

Reading with a Purpose

The following titles have been added to the "Reading with a Purpose" series:

Adventures in Flower Gardening, by Sydney B. Mitchell.
Good English, by Virginia C. Bacon.
Pivotal Figures of Science, by Arthur E. Bostwick.

Books Recently Added to the Library

An r or b prefixed to the call number indicates that the book must be called for and used in the Reference or the Technology Room; j that it is especially suitable for children; and q that it is quarto size or larger

Fiction

Benson, Edward Frederic. B443L

Lucia in London; a novel. Doubleday.

A lightly humorous story of English society. Lucia, a leader in her own town, goes to London and tries to climb the social heights.

Bowen, Elizabeth. B6623h

The hotel. Dial Press.

"The hotel is on the Riviera di Povente, and all the visitors are English. The story is of the friendship of the heroine with a vague maternal elegant lady who becomes occupied with her son, and throws her admirer into the company of a clergyman...Round them flows the life of the hotel, which is described with much humour and insight in the slyest and most reticent of styles." Cyril Connolly in New statesman, 1927.

Chambers, Robert William. C355s

The Sun Hawk. Appleton.

Count Frontenac, the "Sun Hawk", is one of the chief characters in this romantic tale of Canada told by a young Englishman.

Davidson, Arthur A. D297e

Eilean More. Longmans.

A remote island in the Hebrides is the scene of this tale of the last of its chiefs, who though the least promising of his line, contrived to bring it to a memorable close.

Deeping, Warwick. D372u

Uther and Igraine. Knopf. (The blue jade library.)

A romance of Britain during the time of the Saxon invasion, prior to the birth of Arthur.

Delafield, E. M. (pseud. of Edmée Elizabeth Monica De La Pasture). D387wa

The way things are. Harper.

A story of family life at a small country place in England, depicting especially Laura, the wife and mother, with her vague longings and desires for a richer, more emotional life.

Delmar, Viña. D412b

Bad girl. Harcourt.

The story of the courtship and marriage of a typist and a radio mechanic who are representative of New York's inarticulate majority.

Grey, Zane. G8872n

"Nevada"; a romance of the West. Harper.

A sequel to "Forlorn River".

[Gusev, Sergieĭ Ivanovich.] G978L

The land of the children, by S. G. Orenburgsky [pseud.]; tr. from the Russian by N. N. Selivanova. Longmans.

A novel of the Russian Revolution, vividly presenting its aspect to peasant and soldier, realist and idealist.

Larsen, Nella. L3344q

Quicksand. Knopf.

The story of the efforts of an intelligent mulatto girl to escape from the limitations and sense of inferiority imposed upon her by her race. Her quest takes her to Denmark, the other source of her heritage, but with little satisfaction.

Macaulay, Rose. M1192da

Daisy & Daphne. Boni.

Also published under title "Keeping up appearances".

"A novel with a really good idea—the dual personality of a young woman genteel on one side, cockney on the other, and forced to reconcile a talent for cheap journalism with a love for an aloof and scientific young man." Cyril Connolly in New statesman, 1928.

Maugham, William Somerset. M488a

Ashenden; or, The British agent. Doubleday.

A series of incidents dealing with the war work of a British secret service agent, an author by profession, who finds that intrigue, love, and life have little new to offer the writer of fiction.

Miller, Mrs. Alice (Duer). M691w

Welcome home. Dodd.

Contains also her "Her mother's jewels".

The first of these novelettes tells of the romantic adventure that resulted when a young man returning from South America found a mysterious girl in his supposedly empty New York house. The second is the story of a New York society girl and an unusual criminal.

Montgomery, Lucy Maud. M864emi

Emily's quest. Stokes.

Continues the series, following "Emily of New Moon" and "Emily climbs". Concerned with her trials as an author, and her variableness in love.

Neff, Mrs. Wanda Fraiken. N199w

We sing Diana. Houghton.

The story of a girl who grows up in a world of women—at home, at school, at the university, and at an English college—and of the effect it has upon her life.

Norris, Kathleen. N4523be

Beauty and the beast. Doubleday.

A world cruise in the private yacht of a beautiful young Southern girl is the thread on which is strung a series of romantic adventures.

Odum, Howard Washington. O148r

Rainbow round my shoulder: the blue trail of black Ulysses, decorations by Harry Knight. Bobbs.

"A monologue of a negro itinerant worker, who intersperses his recital of his wanderings with snatches of song, mostly 'blues' that cannot be found anywhere else...A perfectly authentic document of negro life." Herschel Brickell in North American review, 1928.

Oemler, Marie Conway. O156sh

Sheaves; a comedy of manners. Century.

A charming but too frivolous young man disinherited by a stern, irascible uncle, becomes steady and hard-working, while his uncle, under the influence of love, unexpectedly renews his youth.

Suckow, Ruth. S942b

The Bonney family. Knopf.

The story covers 20 years in the life of a family in a small Iowa town, presenting with penetrating insight the relationships between two generations and the poignant, solitary experience of adolescence.

Train, Arthur Cheney. T684a

Ambition. Scribner.

The story of a young New York lawyer, and the effect upon his life and career of his marriage to a socially ambitious wife.

Van Buren, Maud, & Bemis, K. I., ed. V1772m

Mother in modern story. Century.

Contents.—Mother and the girls [by] Alice Booth.—The mother of Gennesaret [by] A. S. Turnbull.—Mrs. Ripley's trip [by] Hamlin Garland.—Mother Martin's wing [by] C. W. Parmenter.—Mother gets back on the job [by] B. S. Aldrich.—The mother [by] Ruth Sawyer.—The little gold key [by] E. B. Delano.—Mother's business [by] J. W. Tompkins.—A cooky-jar mother [by] F. H. Townsend.—So not to be alone [by] C. H. Rhone.—The little mother [by] E. M. Colson.—The mother [by] R. H. Schauffler.—Mother Harvey's strategy [by] O. H. Prouty.—The raspberry dress [by] A. J. Carver.—The mother in Paradise [by] Eugene Field.—The revolt of "mother" [by] M. E. W. Freeman.—The return [by] D. E. Norman-Smith.—The mission of Jane [by] Edith Wharton.—The mother [by] Alphonse Daudet.

Van Dine, S. S., pseud. V185g

The Greene murder case; a Philo Vance story. Scribner.

Weale, B. L. Putnam (pseud. of Bertram Lenox Simpson). W358he

Her closed hands. Macmillan.

"Wang starts as an errand boy and becomes an officer in the Chinese Revolution. He is humorous in his Chinese way, and resourceful to boot. Wang gives color and life to this tale of China as it is today." Outlook, 1927.

Whitechurch, Victor Lorenzo. W6372s

Shot on the downs. Duffield.

A mystery story.

Williams, Ben Ames. W742d

The dreadful night. Dutton.

A mystery story.

Wright, Sydney Fowler. W9362d

Deluge; a romance. Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.

" 'Deluge', postulating a world-wide cataclysm, a disaster that instantly erases modern civilization and casts the few survivors of the well-nigh annihilated human race back upon the most primitive conditions, lives and breathes with actuality in its every detail. It is energized by a profound scorn for the artificial environment our modern industrialism has made for us." W. R. Benét in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Wylie, Mrs. Elinor (Hoyt). W9862m

Mr. Hodge & Mr. Hazard. Knopf.

A minor English poet, with something of Shelley's dreamy, sensitive spirit, returns to England after years of virtual exile. A charming summer idyl which might have restored his faith in himself and the world is shattered by the touch of too harsh reality.

Young, Francis Brett. Y372k

The key of life. Knopf.

"The main interest lies in Ruth's dilemma; shall she follow her instinct of pity, which draws her towards the delicate, passionate, neurotic Bredon, or shall she hearken to the persuasions of Bezuidenhout, who has no need of pity and would despise it as weakness? ...The narrative, with its vivid pictures of Wales and Egypt under the archæologist's pick-axe [is] a good one." L. P. Hartley in Saturday review, 1928.

French Fiction

Bordeaux, Henry. 843 B63no2

La nouvelle croisade des enfants; abridged and ed. with notes, questionnaire, exercises, and vocabulary, by H. W. Church. Allyn.

Philosophy. Psychology

Hart, Joseph Kinmont. 191 H31

Inside experience; a naturalistic philosophy of life and the modern world. Longmans, 1927.

His object is to provide a popular conspectus of the Natural Empiricism of his friend and master Professor Dewey, and he tells us that it was only because so much of his own personality percolated into the work that he abandoned his first intention of announcing that aim in his title. Humor and a felicitous gift of quotation from the English poets constitute the main attraction of his work. Condensed from Times [London] literary supplement, 1927.

National Committee for Mental Hygiene. qr 016.13 N15

Weekly bibliography of current literature on mental hygiene and related subjects, 1925–date. v.1–date. 1925–date.

The nature of matter, gravitation, and light. Wood, 1927.

"The real object, indeed, of this book...has been to correlate the various aspects under which the universe appears to us. These aspects are four or five; a formal or geometrical aspect; a kinetic or mechanical aspect; an electrical; a magnetic; and a psychical aspect. By the reduction of the dimensions of all physical phenomena to those of four-dimensional space, I was able to express everything geometrically; by the invention of the etherial unit, the etherion, it became possible to correlate every electrical or magnetic thing with its mechanical and geometrical equivalent; and also by postulating that one of the coordinates of space-time was the psychical coordinate, and that one of the components of motion in the vortex was the psychical component, the electrons being psychons, it became possible to begin the process of connecting the psychical with its material equivalent." Preface.

Prothero, Rowland Edmund. 809.3 P97

The light reading of our ancestors; chapters in the growth of the English novel. Brentano [1927].

His purpose is to trace, with copious documentation, the growth of fiction from the early Greek and Roman prose romances (which, of course, had their influences on later English writers) to Jane Austen and Walter Scott. His material is familiar, but its presentation as a running connected story of mingled information and criticism is something new. Condensed from Herbert Gorman in New York times, 1927.

Schiller, Johann Christoph Friedrich von. 834 S33

Aesthetical and philosophical essays. Collier, 1902. (Complete works, v.8.)

The complete works; illustrated edition. Worthington, 1883.

Drama. Theater

Baldwin, Thomas Whitfield. 822.33 HL12

The organization and personnel of the Shakespearean company. Princeton University Press, 1927.

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

"The ambitious task he has essayed has three parts: (1) To work out from the extant documents of every kind...the precise personnel of the different groups of Shakespeare's business associates...from the time the poet began his career till his company was disbanded in 1642; (2) to deduce the nature of the work which each of these individuals did, and even the parts each acted in the various plays; and (3) to advance the extremely interesting thesis that Shakespeare's dramatic work was conditioned in a degree hitherto unsuspected by the minute human peculiarities of the changing body of men to whose histrionic measure...he carefully tailored each successive play...The book is undeniably of the class that advances knowledge and opens new avenues of research." Tucker Brooke in Saturday review of literature, 1927.

Bellinger, Mrs. Martha Idell (Fletcher). 809.2 B41

A short history of the drama. Holt [c1927].

"A brief reading list for students of the drama": p.373–377; "A supplement containing the names of important playwrights in Europe, America, and the Orient, with dates and representative plays": p.381–437.

Biography

Individual Biography

[Allegheny County, Pa., Bar Association.] r 92 G657aL

In memoriam, George B. Gordon; born in Edgewood, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, August 1, 1860; died in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, September 8, 1927. [Pittsburgh, 1927.]

Byrd, Richard Evelyn. 92 B996b

Skyward; man's mastery of the air as shown by the brilliant flights of America's leading air explorer; his life, his thrilling adventures, his North Pole and trans-Atlantic flights, together with his plans for conquering the Antarctic by air; illustrated. Putnam, 1928.

"The book has much in it besides an account of adventures. It discusses the supposed dangers of flying, the reasons for pioneer flights, the attitude of the public toward its heroes, and the generous co-operation of many individuals who help to finance expeditions such as Byrd has undertaken...His record of his accomplishments and hopes ...is a fascinating chronicle." F. E. Hill in Books, 1928.

Caruso, Mrs. Dorothy (Benjamin), & Goddard, Mrs. Torrance (Benjamin). 92 C243c

Wings of song; the story of Caruso. Minton, 1928.

Recollections of the great tenor during the three years from the time of his marriage to his death in 1921.

Clark, Allen Culling. r 92 L715cL

Abraham Lincoln, the merciful president; the pardon of the sleeping sentinel. 1927.

A short account of William Scott, the young Vermont soldier who was pardoned by Lincoln, and a brief chapter discussing other instances of the President's clemency.

Conrad, Joseph. 92 C755cn

Letters, 1895–1924; ed. with introduction and notes by Edward Garnett; illustrated. Bobbs [c1928].

The letters are all addressed to Edward Garnett, who was Conrad's close friend and literary counselor through many years.

"The chief value of this collection of letters will remain their matchless elucidation of the novelist's spiritual travail, his pathetic dependence upon his friend, his austere artistic integrity and his indomitable will." William McFee in Books, 1928.

Drew, Elizabeth A. 92 C2141d

Jane Welsh and Jane Carlyle; with five illustrations. Harcourt [c1928].

Bibliography on leaf following title-page.

Duncan, Isadora. 92 D8993d

My life. Boni, 1927.

Memoirs of the dancer who won fame in America and Europe not only for her own dancing but for her efforts in founding a school of the dance. The book ends with Miss Duncan's departure for Russia in 1921.

Fuess, Claude Moore. 92 C448f

Rufus Choate; the wizard of the law. Minton, 1928.

A biography of the Massachusetts lawyer (1799–1859) who served in Congress in both the House and the Senate, and who was famous as an orator.

Greely, Adolphus Washington. 92 G8262g

Reminiscences of adventure and service; a record of sixty-five years. Scribner, 1927.

General Greely remained in the army after the Civil War and was conspicuous for his work in the Signal corps and the Weather service, and for his leadership in the Arctic expedition to Lady Franklin Bay in 1881–84.

Hertz, Emanuel, ed. 92 L715her

Abraham Lincoln; the tribute of the synagogue; foreword by J. H. Hertz, preface by N. M. Butler. Bloch, 1927.

A collection of addresses by Jewish speakers from 1865 to 1927.

Indiana—Historical commission. r 92 F682i

Marshal Foch day, November 4, 1921; official record of the celebration given in honor of Marshal Ferdinand L. Foch, Indianapolis, November 4, 1921. 1922. (Indiana historical collections.)

Irwin, William Henry. 92 H779i

Herbert Hoover; a reminiscent biography; illustrated. Century [c1928].

"It can be said of Will Irwin's biography—the work of a friend and a worshiper—that it is by far the best presentation of the human side of Herbert Hoover that has yet appeared. Bearing the marks of haste which normally accompany the literary by-products of a Presidential campaign, it nevertheless is rich in episode and anecdote and... presents fairly and vividly the essential facts of his ancestry, his upbringing, his achievements and his personality." Geoffrey Parsons in Books, 1928.

Jenkins, John Wilber. 92 D885j

James B. Duke, master builder: the story of tobacco, development of Southern and Canadian water-power, and the creation of a university. Doran [c1927].

A biography of the wealthy tobacco magnate (1856–1925), founder of Duke University.

Leslie, Shane. 92 S977L

The skull of Swift; an extempore exhumation. Bobbs [c1928].

"The design is admirable, and the result might have been equally admirable had not the biographer approached his subject with an unmistakable bias...Mr. Leslie does not deny Swift's greatness...but he finds it difficult to reconcile that greatness with a number of other qualities which he abhors. Indeed, he does not attempt to resolve the difficulty on human grounds: he falls back upon an Act of God and avers that Swift had no soul...'The Skull of Swift' is primarily an interpretation of character, and its author does not profess to add any new facts about Swift." A. E. Case in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

MacNutt, Francis Augustus. 92 C249m

Bartholomew de las Casas; his life, his apostolate, and his writings. Putnam, 1909.

"Authorities consulted": p.xxxi.

This Spanish priest, the first to be ordained in the American colonies, was for some time bishop of Chiapa in Mexico, and was known chiefly for his courageous work on behalf of the oppressed natives of the West Indies and Mexico.

Payne, Edward F. 92 D551pa

Dickens days in Boston; a record of daily events. Houghton, 1927.

Bibliography: p.[ix]–xi.

A record in the form of a diary, covering every day of Dickens's two visits in 1842 and 1867. The author, president (1927) of the Boston branch of the Dickens Fellowship, has gathered his material from letters, diaries, and old newspapers.

Powys, Llewelyn. 92 H887p

Henry Hudson. Harper, 1928. (Golden hind series.)

Bibliography: p.199–206.

"Mr. Powys has made the most of the rather scanty material that is known to exist about Henry Hudson, and has told a story which, while it contains a good deal of Powys and still more of what historians speak of as 'setting,' offers an appealing picture of the famous navigator...The chief historical contribution of the book, aside from its skilful weaving of the story, is its account of the trial and acquittal of the mutineers, in 1618." William MacDonald in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Simon, John Smith. 92 W553si

John Wesley, the master-builder. Epworth Press [1927].

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

Describes Wesley and his work, and records the progress of the Methodist Church in the 18th century and the introduction of Methodism into America.

Soulié, Maurice. 92 R197s

The wolf cub; the great adventure of Count Gaston de Raousset-Boulbon in California and Sonora, 1850–1854; tr. from the French by Farrell Symons. Bobbs [c1927].

A short and romantically written account of the French soldier of fortune who was executed by the Mexicans after two invasions made in an attempt to establish a military and industrial company in Sonora for the exploitation of the mines.

Stebbins, George Coles. 92 S811s

George C. Stebbins; reminiscences and gospel hymn stories, with an introduction by C. H. Gabriel. Doran [c1924].

Contains music.

The first half of the book recounts the author's experiences as a singer and musical director with Moody and Sankey, and others in evangelistic campaigns in America, Europe, and India. The second half contains brief accounts of hymn writers with whom Mr. Stebbins was acquainted.

Ticknor, Caroline. 92 A3553t

May Alcott; a memoir, with illustrations. Little, 1928.

May Alcott was the youngest sister of Louisa Alcott, who pictured her in Amy, the artist of "Little women". The memoir is made up largely from May's correspondence and extracts from Mrs. Alcott's journal and Louisa Alcott's "Life, letters, and journals".

Vandercook, John W. 92 H45193v

Black majesty; the life of Christophe, king of Haiti; with drawings by Mahlon Blaine. Harper, 1928.

Bibliography: p.204–207.

"A highly theatricalized historical romance woven round the life of Henry Christophe, the black tyrant of Hayti, who was born a slave and died a king...There isn't a dull or badly written page, but it is scarcely possible to turn three pages without encountering inaccuracy, anachronism or theatricalization of one sort or another...But there is much ...that is magnificent and admirable and true in the sum total of the picture which Mr. Vandercook draws of this bloody epic of black freedom, and particularly of Christophe." W. B. Seabrook in Books, 1928.

Willsie, Mrs. Honoré (McCue). 92 L7152w

Mary Todd Lincoln; an appreciation of the wife of Abraham Lincoln. Morrow, 1928.

An attempt to present Mrs. Lincoln in a more favorable light than has usually been accorded her. Although the style is popular, the facts are based on a thorough study of source material.

Young, Samuel Hall. 92 Y39y

Hall Young of Alaska; "the mushing parson"; the autobiography of S. H. Young; with introduction by J. A. Marquis. Revell [c1927].

"Vivid memories of his boyhood and stirring recollections of life in Alaska before and during the gold fever animate these pages. Dr. Young's life was marked with drama far in excess of that which ordinarily falls to a churchman; he had the faculty of being in the forefront of events...He was more than a missionary, being a teacher, an organizer and an explorer as well." Books, 1928.

Safari; a saga of the African blue; with 66 illustrations. Putnam, 1928.

An account of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson's experiences in British East Africa in 1924–27.

"A first-rate book...It deserves all the more praise because writing and stills were only by-products and afterthoughts of Mr. Johnson's African campaign. To the main object of making motion pictures of the larger mammals all else was subordinated...It is significant of the untouched richness of life in this region that in this volume of nearly three hundred pages Mr. Johnson has touched upon his subject only in broad outline and generalization. And yet one hardly feels the lack of detail." William Beebe in Books, 1927.

Maximilian and Charlotte of Mexico; tr. from the German by C. A. Phillips. 2v. Knopf, 1928. (Great pages of history.)

Bibliography: v.2, p.949–963.

Count Corti was the first to examine and sift the hitherto inaccessible correspondence of the Emperor Maximilian in the Hapsburg family archives in Vienna.

He has "confined himself to a narrative of the Mexican Expedition from Maximilian's point of view, and has thrown chief emphasis on those aspects which are particularly illuminated by the new material...The book is admirably planned and very well written... There are voluminous quotations from the correspondence all the way through and the book is enriched with contemporary portraits and with facsimiles of letters. For the benefit of the historian the letters exchanged between Napoleon and Maximilian, and between Eugenie and Charlotte are printed in extenso in the appendices". *W. L. Books for the Blind

The Library has a collection of about 5,000 books and 5 periodicals for the blind. The Pennsylvania Home Teaching Society and Free Circulating Library for the Blind support in this district a teacher, herself totally blind, who, under the direction of this Library, visits the adult blind in their homes and teaches them to read. This service and the use of the books are absolutely free to all adult blind in Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania and the director requests that names and addresses of such persons be sent to him in order that the teacher may call upon them.

Each borrower is responsible for all books charged on his card and for all fines incurred for books charged thereon.

Change of residence should be reported to the Library immediately.

Lost cards should be reported to the Library immediately. Adult cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss. Juvenile cards will be replaced fourteen days after notice of loss, upon payment of a fine of five cents.

Issue and Renewal of Books. Holders of adult cards may borrow ten books and two current magazines at one time. Four of the books may be fiction. Holders of juvenile cards may borrow two juvenile books at one time.

Books, other than some popular new ones, may be kept two weeks, and may be once renewed for two weeks provided there is no request waiting. Current magazines and certain popular new books may be kept one week and are not renewable.

Requests for renewal may be made in person, by mail, or by telephone. In each case the call number of the book, the number of the borrower's card, and the date on which the book is due must be given.

Reserving Books. Books may be reserved by payment of one cent for a postal card notice which will be mailed as soon as the book is available. The book will be held three days. Requests for reserves may be made by telephone, in which case the cost of the postal card will be collected when the borrower calls for the book.

Fines. A fine of two cents a day, including Sundays and holidays, must be paid on each book kept overtime. The fine for children under 14 years of age is one cent a day for each book.

The borrower must pay for books lost or injured while charged on his card. No books may be borrowed while fines and claims for damages are unpaid.

No claim is accepted because of failure of the Post Office to deliver notices to or from the Library.

Publications of the Library Now in Print

Prices. Where two prices are given, the first is that for which the publication is sold at the Library only. All prices are strictly net, except for individual publications ordered in lots of twenty or more. Remittances must be made in advance, payable to Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. All publications not marked * may be had free at the Library, or will be sent postpaid for 5 cents each.

Fiction

Bishop, William Avery, & Stuart-Wortley, Rothesay. B4963f

The flying squad. Doran.

A detective story in which two student aviators play an important part.

Chekhov, Anton Pavlovich. C418se

Select tales; tr. from the Russian by Constance Garnett. Chatto.

Contents.—The lady with the dog.—The horse-stealers.—The bishop.—In the ravine.—Sleepy.—Ionitch.—At Christmas time.—My life.—The chorus girl.—The new villa.—The teacher of literature.—The witch.—An anonymous story.—The beauties.—A transgression.—Gusev.—A woman's kingdom.—Mire.—Easter eve.—A dreary story.—An incident.—An artist's story.—A misfortune.—Happiness.—The darling.

Cher, Marie. C4242d

The door unlatched. Minton.

A tale, in charming, lyric style, of a young man living in an old quarter of Paris, who becomes so obsessed by the violent scenes that it had witnessed in the days of the Terror, that he is invaded by a second personality, and confuses the friends and emotions of this past life with those of the present.

Curwood, James Oliver. C936p

The Plains of Abraham. Doubleday.

A story of old Quebec and its capture by the English. Although an independent narrative, this novel begins at approximately the point where "The Black Hunter" ended.

Dixelius, Hildur. D6473s

The son; tr. by A. C. Settergren. Dutton.

A sequel to "The minister's daughter", covering the later years of Sara Alelia's life. The story centers around her son, Erik Anton, and his children, and gives a simple but forceful picture of the austere life of rural Sweden in the early 19th century.

Egerton, George, pseud. E353f

Fantasias. Lane.

Contents.—The star-worshipper.—The elusive melody.—The Mandrak Venus.—The futile quest.—The kingdom of dreams.—The well of truth.

Foote, John Taintor. F7472t

Trub's diary. Appleton.

A bull terrier named Trouble (Trub, for short), gives, in a humorous, slangy narrative, his impressions of the world, both canine and human, through which he moves in a series of mishaps and adventures.

Gissing, George. G454th

Thyrza; a tale, with an introduction by Morley Roberts. Nash.

"Tells the story of a London factory girl whose imaginative and spiritual disposition stands out in relief against squalid surroundings. Full of tragic human interest, to which the many by-characters contribute." Baker's Guide to the best fiction in English.

Melville, Lewis (pseud. of Lewis S. Benjamin), & M5952g
Hargreaves, Reginald, ed.

Great French short stories. Boni.

Contents.—'Tis of Aucassin and of Nicolette; tr. by Eugène Mason.—Ingenious device of a Castilian in order to make a declaration of love to a queen, and what came of it; Two over-inquisitive Cordeliers had a great fright, which had like to cost them their lives; The horrible incontinence and malice of a Duchess of Burgundy was the cause of her death, and of that of two persons who fondly loved each other [by] Marguerite d'Angoulême, queen of Navarre.—How a junior devil was fooled by a husbandman of Pope-Figland; How Panurge related to Master Æduuus the fable of the horse and the ass [by] François Rabelais.—The sleeping beauty in the wood; The master cat; or, Puss in boots; Cinderilla; or, The little glass slipper; Little Red Riding Hood [by] Charles Perrault.—Friar Philip's geese; The husband turn'd confessor; The cobbler and the receiver-general of the finances; The two cocks [by] Jean de La Fontaine.—Finette the Cinderella [by] Marie Catherine, comtesse d'Aulnoy.—The vision of Babouc; The black and the white [by] F. M. A. de Voltaire.—The connoisseur [by] J. F. Marmontel.—Mirza [by] Madame de Staël.—The last of the Abencerrages [by] F. A. de Chateaubriand.—Bean Flower and Pea Blossom; Charity; Nausicaa; Princess Mimi's lovers [by] J. E. C. Nodier.—How the Château d'Azay came to be built; The conscript; Innocence [by] Honoré de Balzac.—The story of the bold Pécopin [by] V. M. Hugo.—The Venus of Ille; The Etruscan vase [by] Prosper Mérimée.—Sylvie [by] Gerard de Nerval.—The bird of fate [by] Alexandre Dumas, père.—Mimi Pinson [by] Alfred de Musset.—The nest of nightingales [by] Théophile Gautier.—The legend of St. Julian the Hospitaller; Herodias; A simple heart [by] Gustave Flaubert.—Citizen Schneider [by] Émile Erckmann & L. G. C. A. Chatrian.—The twins [by] Edmond About.—A drama in the air [by] Jules Verne.—The child spy; The pope's mule [by] Alphonse Daudet.—The attack on the mill [by] E. E. C. A. Zola.—The white frock [by] François Coppée.—The procurator of Judæa [by] Anatole France.—Knapsacks [by] J. K. Huysman.—The olive-yard; The necklace; Saved [by] Guy de Maupassant.—A gambler [by] P. C. J. Bourget.—Serenus; The white chapel [by] F. E. J. Lemaître.—Old Chogne's will [by] R. F. N. M. Bazin.—The brother; The last steps; Force [by] Henri Barbusse.—The six-day night [by] Paul Morand.—The ghost [by] M. S. M. Tinayre.—At the Chevalier Restaurant; The fried-potato sisters [by] Pierre Hamp.

Nason, Leonard H. N1473s

Sergeant Eadie. Doubleday.

A story of the World War. The action precedes that in "Chevrons", following the adventures of Eadie from the time he is on his way to France in a ship which is torpedoed just before landing, until at last he finds himself at the front and in the midst of battle.

Reid, Leslie. R3112t

Trevy the River. Dutton.

"Deals...with a youth about whose origin legend has clustered. The character and course of the river by which he was born influence profoundly the life of this lad." Saturday review of literature, 1928.

The setting is rural England.

Richmond, Mrs. Grace Louise (Smith). R425L

Lights up. Doubleday.

The romances of Joan Dare and her friend Peggy Faulkner. The setting is Westchester County.

Vachell, Horace Annesley. V115m

Men are so selfish! Putnam.

Also published under title "Miss Torrobin's experiment".

An amusing story of a young stage-struck Etonian who impersonates his sister at a house party, and his sister who acts as his maid.

Whitlock, Brand. W647b

Big Matt; a story. Appleton.

John Blake's election to the governorship as the climax of a rather shady political career brings him a sense of responsibility to the public that proves embarrassing to his old friend, Big Matt.

Yates, Dornford. Y18b

Berry and co. Minton.

"The second novel...about the extremely merry Pleydell clan. 'Jonah & Co.' told of their exploits on the Riviera; 'Berry & Co.' tells of the same group at their home, 'White Ladies,' in England...The tone of high good humor is held throughout the tale, and the ridiculous situations at the author's command seem endless." Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Young, Stark. Y3922t

The torches flare. Scribner.

The romance of a Southern girl—her experiences in New York as a successful actress and her life at home in a small town in Mississippi.

Cutten, George Barton. 132 C95

Speaking with tongues, historically and psychologically considered. Yale University Press, 1927.

"The present volume is the ninth work published by the Yale University Press on the James Wesley Cooper Memorial Publication Fund."

Bibliography: p.185–189.

Discusses instances of "speaking with tongues" recorded in the New Testament, in the lives of the saints, and in accounts of various sects. One chapter deals with cases of a non-religious type. The first and the last chapters consider the psychological cause of the phenomenon which the author explains as a state of ecstacy or hysteria in which the power of rational thought and self-control is lost.

Downey, June Etta. 152 D771

The kingdom of the mind. Macmillan, 1927. (The young people's shelf of science.)

Explains psychology for young readers.

Guthrie, Malcolm. 192 S74zgu

On Mr. Spencer's unification of knowledge. Trübner, 1882.

Lewis, Wyndham. 115 L67

Time and western man. Harcourt [c1928].

Like all of Mr. Lewis's books "Time and western man" includes almost too much for a single treatise, and its method is highly discursive. Book one offers interesting criticism of such leaders in contemporary "revolutionary" literature as Pound, Joyce, and Stein. Book two, "an analysis of the philosophy of time", brings him to the theoretical consideration of certain habits of thought which are the chief subjects of his book. This "time-mind", Mr. Lewis attacks as fundamentally antithetical to the processes of art and hence as inimical to the development of any satisfactory human society. Condensed from J. W. Krutch in Nation, 1927.

The time-cult is traced through the works of Bergson, Russell, Einstein, Whitehead, Alexander, and Spengler.

Lotze, Hermann. 110 L92o

Religion without revelation. Harper [c1927]. ('What I believe' series.)

Bibliography: p.383–384.

"The author...is a scientist of standing in his own right but when he deals with religion the fact that he is the grandson of T. H. Huxley will always emerge as a major matter...Professor Huxley is very insistent throughout his book that the curse of religion is the idea of a supernatural Deity and that religion is 'a way of life founded upon the apprehension of sacredness in existence.' What is so very impressive in this book is Science: leading and misleading. Murray [1927].

"It is not likely that this book will find many sympathetic readers except among those in the state of mind of the author who seems to be nursing a grievance. His especial theme is the alleged hostility of Learned Societies and Universities to unacceptable and new ideas... The whole book is a review of the rivalry and conflict of ideas and theories which have marked the history and advance of science, with great emphasis upon the errors of noted men. Doubtless eminent scientists have erred at times and there have been unfortunate misunderstandings and regrettable controversies in many branches of science, but it is hardly necessary to relate them with such an animus or develop so much acerbity of spirit as appears in this book." American journal of science, 1928.

The Open Stack

Direct access to about fifty thousand additional books has been effected through the opening of the main floor of the book stack to public use.

Readers have heretofore been required to secure the call numbers of these books and leave their requests at the loan desk. They may now go directly to the shelves to make their choice of books.

This open stack includes all of the Library's fiction, science, technology, fine arts, books in foreign languages, and general literature, except the reference books in these classes.

Books of other classes are still divided between the Reading-room shelves and other levels of the book stack which cannot now be opened for public use.

A New Branch Library for Knoxville-Carrick

Public library service in the Knoxville and Carrick districts is now available with the opening of a new branch of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh in the school building at Knox Avenue and Rochelle Street.

Although it is located in a school building, the new branch library is planned to serve adults fully as much as school children.

It is open on Tuesdays and Fridays from 1 to 9 P. M., and on all other week days from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Miss Eleanor McCann is in charge as branch librarian, with Miss Helen M. Studer as children's librarian.

This community branch library is the first one in Pittsburgh to be located in a school. A large room with heat, light, and janitor service is furnished by the Board of Public Education. Books, equipment, and librarians are supplied by the Library.

Like many other public library agencies this new branch owes its establishment to a group of interested women. The Women's Library Club of Knoxville has been trying for nearly thirty years to bring library service to their district. The present committee of women is composed of Miss Millie D. DuVall, Mrs. Milo H. Miller, Mrs. Edith Twitmeyer, Mrs. Alice Davies, Mrs. R. J. Phillips, Mrs. Carl Cappel, and Mrs. R. B. Gardner, President of the Club.

The George F. Black Collection of Books on the Gypsies

The Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh has recently acquired a very important collection of books and pamphlets on the gypsies. This was the private collection of Dr. George F. Black of New York, who is recognized as an eminent authority on the gypsies and whose Gypsy Bibliography, published as a Monograph of the Gypsy Lore Society is the outstanding bibliography of the subject.

Dr. Black's work of collecting these books extended over a period of fifteen years. To make such a collection now would be an almost impossible task, so rare and difficult to secure have many of the books become. Indeed, in looking over Dr. Black's carefully typed catalogue of thirty pages, one wonders how he could have assembled such a collection in only fifteen years, for not only does it include the best of the well-known modern works, but here are to be found old and rare books and pamphlets for which one must search long and diligently in out-of-the-way places. Only one who had been for years a student and a lover of the subject could have made the collection what it is. For aside from the standard works on the gypsies, the reference books and the periodicals, and the many rare books and pamphlets, there are all sorts of interesting things which will delight the amateur. Both the student's scientific interest and the romantic appeal to the imagination which is inherent in the very name of gypsy are expressed in this collection—in its many scholarly studies and treatises in many languages, and in the imaginative literature of poetry and drama, novel and tale, folklore and song.

This little library, then, consists of about four hundred and fifty volumes and pamphlets on the manners and customs, language, music, anthropology, history, and folklore of the gypsies, and includes virtually all of the standard works on the subject. There are books in about a dozen different languages, many in English, German, and French, and others in the lesser known languages of Europe. Among the important works are found The Journal of the Gypsy Lore Society, nearly complete; Pott's Die Zigeuner in Europa und Asien, the great standard work on the language of the gypsies; Miklosich's Über die Mundarten und die Wanderungen der Zigeuner Europa's, the great and authoritative study of the gypsy language of Europe, now very rare; Paspates' Études sur les Tchinghianés, the works of George Borrow, the important dictionaries and grammars of the gypsy language, and many publications of learned societies.

It remains only to say that the Reference Department of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh will welcome any student or lover of gypsy lore who may wish to become better acquainted with this most interesting collection. I. S.

Fiction

Baroja y Nessi, Pio. B257t

The tree of knowledge; tr. from the Spanish by A. F. G. Bell. Knopf.

"Has long been regarded as one of his best works, a rounded and finished attempt to put into fictional form the peculiarly cynical and bitter philosophy which is his own. It is...an unsparing picture of life in Spain, of life in medical schools, in a small town and in Madrid...It follows the career of a physician...[who] eventually finds the fruit of the tree so gall bitter that rather than continue to eat it, he takes his own life. Baroja makes this act a direct protest against the state of civilization in which Hurtado is forced to live." Herschel Brickell in Books, 1928.

Beer, Thomas. B3813r

The road to heaven; a romance of morals. Knopf.

Lamon Coe comes from a farm in the Middle West to stay in New York with his wealthy cousin, who introduces him to the sophisticated group of his friends.

Brummitt, Dan Brearley. B834s

Shoddy. Willett.

"Deals with the life-experiences of a Methodist Bishop who follows his well-meaning but none-too-original ways as thousands have followed theirs, thriving on re-worked ideas, delivering re-worked sermons, winning applause by being second-hand in everything and an initiator in nothing." New York times book review, 1928.

Byrne, Donn. B996cr

Crusade. Little.

The life and adventures of young Miles O'Neill, a crusader who, having been made captive by the Saracens, finds love and peace among his captors.

Casserly, Gordon. C261d

Dwellers in the jungle; with eight illustrations in black and white from drawings by Warwick Reynolds. Stokes.

Contents.—A babe of the Titans.—The monkey who wouldn't be told.—Cock-o'-the-Walk.—The hated horde.—The warden of the ford.—The wonderful weaver.—The grand inquisitor.—The freedom of Jhansi.

Féval, Paul, & Lassez, M. F438y

[The years between; adventures of D'Artagnan and Cyrano de Bergerac]; tr. by C. B. Chase. [2v.] Longmans.

v.1. The mysterious cavalier.
v.2. Martyr to the queen.

Writing with the approval of the Dumas literary heirs, these two French authors have filled the gap between "The three musketeers" and "Twenty years after". They tell of the exciting adventures of D'Artagnan, Cyrano de Bergerac, and a mysterious young cavalier who gives his life to guard the queen's secret.

Fletcher, Joseph Smith. F635co

Cobweb castle. Knopf.

A detective story.

Fletcher, Joseph Smith. F635do

The double chance. Dodd.

A mystery story.

Forbes, Esther, afterward Mrs. Hoskins. F752m

A mirror for witches, in which is reflected the life, machinations, and death of famous Doll Bilby, who, with a more than feminine perversity, preferred a demon to a mortal lover. Here is also told how and why a righteous and most awfull judgement befell her, destroying both corporeal body and immortal soul; with woodcuts by Robert Gibbings. Houghton.

The story of a Breton child who saw her parents burned as witches. She is saved by a ship's captain who adopts her in spite of his wife's hatred for her and brings her to 17th century Salem.

"The story is the commonplace, almost sordid, one, of a panic-stricken child, pursued by spite and jealousy in a world where frightful beliefs can clothe the happenings of every day with a fiendlike supernatural character. It is there that lies the amazing technique of the writing." Edith Olivier in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Forbes, Rosita. F754p

Pursuit. Macaulay.

Also published under the title "Sirocco".

"A stirring tale full of authentic color about Anne Mainwaring, an English girl who goes to Africa...interests herself in the wars of Sayed Mohamed and the Beni Ams [and] unravels a mystery of the Foreign Legion." Books, 1928.

Galsworthy, John. G157sw

Swan song. Scribner.

"The Forsyte Saga is finished...'Swan Song' celebrates the death of Soames Forsyte, the Man of Property who embodied the Forsyte spirit. Of the younger Forsytes, only his daughter, Fleur, bred true, and in her the Forsyte tenacity and acquisitiveness encounters its ultimate defeat, the fitting Nemesis of Soames, since it is wrought through the son of his old beloved enemy Irene, the image of that beauty which will not be compelled nor owned. This resolution of a theme so admirably sustained through half a dozen rounded tales and several generations has a satisfying amplitude." Isabel Paterson in Books, 1928.

Gibbs, Sir Philip. G365o

Out of the ruins, and other little novels. Doubleday.

Contents.—Out of the ruins.—The wandering birds.—The beating of wings.—The supernatural lady.—The house on the hill.—The fortunate face.—The school of courage.—The sign of the crookéd cross.—The shock of success.

Goodwin, John. G6332w

When dead men tell tales. Putnam.

A mystery story.

Green, Julien. G829c

The closed garden; tr. from the French by H. L. Stuart, with an introduction by André Maurois. Harper.

"The same qualities which were revealed in 'Avarice House' are present in 'The Closed Garden'—a cold absorption in the presentation of a morbid passion, an uncanny skill in conveying a sense of monotony, a very special ability in depicting feminine inhibitions...After a Balzacian introduction which places before us the dreary and repressed Mesurat household and its dreary macrocosm, the town of La Tour l'Eveque, attention is centered almost entirely in young Adrienne...[who is] driven in upon herself by the maniacal selfishness of her sister and father." C. P. Fadiman in Nation, 1928.

Haukland, Andreas Elias Davidsen. H3522n

The Norns are spinning; tr. from the Norwegian by Barent Ten Eyck. Macy-Masius.

A grim and vigorous tale of relentless fate, of feuds and outlawry in the age of the vikings, told with no softening of the harshness and cruelty and wild beauty of this pagan civilization.

Hergesheimer, Joseph. H469q

Quiet cities. Knopf.

Ten short stories, a series of romantic glimpses of American manners during the cycle which began with the prosperous colonies and ended with the Civil War. The first story has its setting in Pittsburgh in the early 19th century.

Heyer, Georgette. H5132h

Helen. Longmans.

The story of a young English girl whose love for her father dominated her life.

Horn, Alfred Aloysius, pseud. H796h

"Harold the webbed; or, The young vykings"; being volume two of The life and works of Trader Horn; the works written by Alfred Aloysius Horn at the age of seventy-three, & the life, with such of his philosophy as is the gift of age and experience, taken down and here edited by Ethelreda Lewis; with a foreword by William McFee. Simon.

A tale of the invasion of Lancashire by the Romans and of the adventures of Harold, son of Bold Roger, the viking. At the end of each chapter are included the conversations of Trader Horn with his collaborator.

Jameson, Storm. J166f

Farewell to youth. Knopf.

"A saga of modern British family relationships, in which the pivotal point is a certain lithe, handsome, and overhonorable boy, around whose adolescent stage...[the] characters weave their unconscious passions into a network of sentimentality." R. W. Marko in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Jones, Emily Beatrix Coursolles. J398h

Helen & Felicia. Holt.

The story of an English family, and in particular of the two sisters whose unusual devotion to each other is severely tested by Helen's marriage.

Kennedy, Robert Emmet. K1845g

Gritny people; design & decoration by E. L. Tinker. Dodd.

"Gretna, known to its inhabitants as Gritny, is a Mississippi River town dropped into the plantation lands opposite New Orleans...The prologue to these tales is laid in Aunt Susan Smiley's cook shop, where the Gritny people, drifting in and out, contribute their current adventures interspersed with an occasional song, in exchange for a plate of gumbo...These people speak for themselves with very little assistance or explanation from their author, and their gayety, their despair and their never-failing power to disturb the heart are genuinely and universally African." Emily Clark in Books, 1928.

Lagerlöf, Selma. L152ge

The general's ring; tr. from the Swedish by Francesca Martin. Doubleday.

A ring, gift to General Löwensköld from King Charles XII, is stolen from his tomb. As it passes from hand to hand through three generations, it carries with it the general's curse until at last it is restored to him.

"Has in it the brooding reflective charm of a tale to be told by the fireside. There is no effort here to strike the note of terror, but to tell a simple story with a conviction undisturbed by incredulity." Eugene Lohrke in Books, 1928.

Larrimore, Lida. L332t

Tarpaper Palace. Macrae.

The story of Mary Ellen, a "native" who finds romance in Cape Cod's summer colony.

Larsen, Hanna Astrup, ed. L3343s

Sweden's best stories; an introduction to Swedish fiction; translations by C. W. Stork [and V. S. Howard]; a selection of short stories. Amer.-Scandinavian Foundation. (Scandinavian classics, v.30.)

Contents.—The pitch burner who always got to the top [by] Zacharias Topelius.—Autumn; The stone man; Half a sheet of paper [by] August Strindberg.—Mother Malena's hen [by] Ernst Ahlgren.—Karin [by] Gustaf af Geijerstam.—The shield-maiden; A clean white shirt [by] Verner von Heidenstam.—Middle-class rococo [by] Oscar Levertin.—The legend of the Christmas rose [by] Selma Lagerlöf.—A Florentine fantasy [by] Per Hallström.—Men's men [by] Pelle Molin.—Margot; The burning city; Archimedes' point [by] Hjalmar Söderberg.—The sign [by] Bo Bergman.—Charles XII, Hercules, and Gustav Mattson [by] Albert Engström.—The awakening [by] Ludvig Nordström.—Out of chaos [by] A. L. Elgström.—In spite of everything; The café of transfiguration [by] Sigfrid Siwertz.—The golden circle [by] Märta af Sillén.

Le May, Alan. L583o

Old Father of Waters. Doubleday.

A romance of steamboat life on the Mississippi before the Civil War.

Lewis, Sinclair. L675man

The man who knew Coolidge; being the soul of Lowell Schmaltz, constructive and Nordic citizen. Harcourt.

Contents.—The man who knew Coolidge.—The story of Mack McMack.—You know how women are.—You know how relatives are.—Travel is so broadening.—The basic and fundamental ideals of Christian American citizenship.

"Consists of a collection of monologues by Lowell Schmaltz, who out-Babbitts Babbitt ...This is caricature of the broadest sort; Schmaltz as a character has two dimensions only, and even the outline is exaggerated beyond belief. The long monologue which gives the book its title appeared in The American Mercury, and is the best of the lot; in the latter pieces, the author is so careless as to make it seem that he himself is speaking... without any attempt at disguise at all." Herschel Brickell in North American review, 1928.

Lewisohn, Ludwig. L6753i

The island within. Harper.

"Arthur Levy...is a young Jew, brought up in New York, whose training as a physician, his marriage to a Gentile, and his familiarity with contemporary culture might have been expected to develop him into an American, not a Jewish American...The novel is the record of his discovery that...within him is an island of racial emotions which he cannot escape...Though not a long book, [it] is built on a large scale. The hero is born only after a hundred pages devoted to an account of his family on its way from Poland to New York." Carl Van Doren in Books, 1928.

Lewisohn, Ludwig—continued. L6753i

Loos, Anita. L854b

"But gentlemen marry brunettes"; intimately illustrated by Ralph Barton. Boni.

"This story of Dorothy's career is a rather sardonic, hard-boiled short story made carefree by the inimitable quality of Lorelei's language." New republic, 1928.

Mackaye, Arthur Loring. M1754v

The viking prince; or, The adventures of Harold Trygvesen, illustrated by A. Thieme. Page.

A tale of romance and adventure in Norway during the viking age.

Nicholson, Meredith. N319c

The cavalier of Tennessee. Bobbs.

A biographical romance of Andrew Jackson.

Norris, Kathleen. N4523f

The foolish virgin. Doubleday.

A spirited young girl belonging to a family formerly influential in a Western town fights the double handicap of poverty and loss of popularity.

Oppenheim, Edward Phillips. O265f

The fortunate wayfarer. Little.

A chance passer-by, a traveling salesman, is made the astonished recipient of a fortune by Lord Ardrington, but he finds a way to repay his benefactor when he overhears a plot against Lord Ardrington and his ward.

Pirandello, Luigi. P649o

The old and the young (I vecchi e i giovani); authorized translation from the Italian by C. K. Scott-Moncrieff. 2v. Dutton.

A historical novel dealing with Sicily late in the 19th century. The chief characters are three generations of a family which includes Garibaldian veterans, fanatical royalists, and modern politicians and business men.

Richmond, Mrs. Grace Louise (Smith). R425o

On Christmas day in the morning; illustrated by C. M. Relyea. Doubleday.

Rinehart, Mrs. Mary E. (Roberts). R472two

Two flights up. Doubleday.

A mystery story.

Romains, Jules. R658d

The death of a nobody; tr. by Desmond MacCarthy and Sydney Waterlow. Huebsch.

An account of how death briefly heightened in the consciousness of others the existence of a lonely man who had seemed entirely insignificant.

Salten, Felix. S176b

Bambi; a life in the woods, foreword by John Galsworthy. Simon.

"Felix Salten's story of deer life in the woods that fringe the Danube is neither sentimental nor used to point a moral. It derives its dramatic value, legitimately, from the animals' fear and terror of their historic enemy—man. Whatever plot there is follows the simple curve of animal existence through the changing seasons...In his absorption with details the author has brought his whole forest to life, yet these details are selected with a poet's intuition for delicacy of effect." Eugene Lohrke in Books, 1928.

Smith, Naomi Gwladys Royde-. S655i

In the wood; a novel in three parts. Harper.

A story of an English family, particularly of the younger daughter Cilia, a sensitive, fanciful girl who refuses to give up the imaginary playmate of her childhood.

Thompson, Sylvia. T3842b

The battle of the horizons. Little.

"A cultivated English family reacting to post-War conditions, the kind English countryside, and much young conversation on social matters. The central figure, however is a lovely American girl...whose crystalline and inflexible ideals of life and of England unconsciously presuppose the immensely wealthy conditions to which she was born." Spectator, 1928.

Tinker, Edward Larocque. T486t

Toucoutou. Dodd.

A picture of mid-19th century New Orleans. The story concerns a beautiful young girl brought up by her octoroon mother to believe that she is an orphan and of unmixed white parentage.

Valdés, Armando Palacio. V148t

Tristan (Tristán ó el pesimismo); a novel; authorized translation from the Spanish by J. B. Reid. Four Seas.

A story of married life, contrasting Tristán, the morose and suspicious, with his brother-in-law, Germán.

Van Dyke, John Henry. V1872o

The organ loft. Badger.

The author presents this novel as the result of his investigations of the prohibition situation.

Vieressaev, V. V. V318d

The deadlock; tr. from the Russian by Nina Wissotzky and Camilla Coventry. Century.

A convincing picture of conditions in a Crimean village after the Russian Revolution. The author depicts the tragic position of the bourgeois and the revolting excesses of both of the contending armies—the White and the Red—as in turn they occupy the town.

Ware, William. W224j

Julian; or, Scenes in Judea. 2v. in 1. Lovell.

A story of Christ and of life in the Holy Land.

Wiley, Hugh. W7182f

Fo' meals a day. Knopf.

Contents.—Pop.— Barefoot.— Hot house.— Plated goldfish.— The pluvitor.— Flim-flamingo.—Sick per cent.—Below the belt.

Willsie, Mrs. Honoré (McCue). W762wi

With malice toward none. Morrow.

"Partial list of books consulted": p.340–342.

"The narrative follows close upon the ending of Mrs. Morrow's previous Lincoln novel, 'Forever Free'...It opens dramatically in the Winter of 1863...[The] main thread of interest is the long conflict between Sumner and Lincoln on the subject of the reconstruction policies." New York times book review, 1928.

Wilson, Alexander Douglas. W7662m

The mystery of tunnel 51. Longmans.

Wister, Owen. W819w

When West was West. Macmillan.

Seabury, David. 150 S438

Growing into life; a magna charta of youth. Boni [c1928].

Bibliography: p.705–709.

In order that parents may be better guides to youth and youth may come to a better understanding of its psychological problems, the author discusses the psychology of human motives, explains neuroses and their causes, and tells how they may be avoided, and how a well-balanced mental attitude and emotional development may be built up.

Wickham, Harvey. 104 W67

The misbehaviorists; pseudo-science and the modern temper. MacVeagh, 1928.

"A great many of the absurdities and glaring inconsistencies that Wickham exposes are doubtless indefensible, and the victims, as scientists, will thank him and mend their arguments; but no absurdity is more indefensible than to suppose that psycho-analysis, behaviorism, eugenics, agnosticism and other such elements in modern thought are to be disposed of by the simple process of picking out, here and there, from the works of those who support these doctrines, passages that are illogical or subject to ribald comment. This the author has done, neglecting almost entirely the good points of each of his subjects. He is moved to his attack not primarily by the error and inconsistencies...but by the belief that they are hurting the cause of religion...The reader who sees and makes allowance for Mr. Wickham's bent can get a vast deal of pleasure and profit from his book." H. M. Parshley in Books, 1928.

The men attacked are Watson, McDougall, Freud, Wiggam, Dorsey, Browne, and Durant.

Bradford, Gamaliel, b. 1863. 170 B68

Life and I; an autobiography of humanity. Houghton, 1928.

"Mr. Gamaliel Bradford calls his 'Life and I' an 'Autobiography of Humanity' on the ground that one man's experience with life is largely every man's experience...Mr. Bradford's book is not a biography of anyone in the usual sense. It is a description of the reactions of a thoughtful man of today to his experiences with life, love, power, thought, religion, as typical as could perhaps be made. It is lucid, wise, and modern." Arthur Colton in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Navigational wireless. Chapman, 1927.

"It may be said without exaggeration that it will not be very many years before the wireless direction-finder will be considered as essential an instrument for aerial and marine navigation as the modern magnetic or gyroscopic compass. It is, therefore, opportune that such a book as that under review should be provided with the averred object of bringing together the wireless operator and the navigating officer, and of educating each in the fundamental principles of the other's calling. On the wireless side the book deals chiefly with the Siemens single-frame-coil direction-finder, which, it is to be noted, is but one of several alternative systems of 'navigation by wireless'." Science progress, 1928.

Stonewall Jackson, the good soldier; a narrative. Minton, 1928.

Bibliography: p.321–322.

"An eminently fair and readable book about the life of a man who is generally considered the greatest military genius our country has yet produced. Mr. Tate, who is a Southerner, does not try to gloss over any of the mistakes of Jackson...but to show him whole." Herschel Brickell in North American review, 1928.

Taylor, George Robert Stirling. 92 C892ta

Cromwell; with illustrations. Little, 1928.

"A portrait of the man, not merely warts and all, but one in which the warts are all that remain of the old picture. Under Mr. Taylor's scrutiny the sturdy, steadfast, typical, God-fearing Englishman of Carlylean fiction fades away, and in his place appears a superstitious, emotional Welsh revivalist, subject to strange brain storms, almost pathological in their violence." New statesman, 1928.

W. R. Hearst; an American phenomenon. Simon, 1928.
"List of publications owned by William Randolph Hearst": p.319.
"Mr. Winkler, being an excellent reporter, has told the story of Hearst's exploits... with a swiftness and pace worthy of the newspaper he once adorned. His biography, whatever its defects as an analysis of character, becomes a fascinating tale as the chapters in this man's life unfold...If Mr. Winkler, a friendly critic, has not given the final portrait it is because he has, in most cases, given Hearst the benefit of every doubt." H. F. Pringle in Books, 1928.

Young, Norwood. 92 C214y
Carlyle; his rise and fall. Duckworth [1927].

Books for the Blind

The Library has a collection of about 5,000 books and 5 periodicals for the blind. The Pennsylvania Home Teaching Society and Free Circulating Library for the Blind support in this district a teacher, herself totally blind, who, under the direction of this Library, visits the adult blind in their homes and teaches them to read. This service and the use of the books are absolutely free to all adult blind in Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania and the director requests that names and addresses of such persons be sent to him in order that the teacher may call upon them.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY OF PITTSBURGH

MONTHLY BULLETIN

VOL. 33 NOVEMBER 1928 NO. 9

THE NEW BULLETIN

The Monthly Bulletin has always included practically every book added to the Library.

This wide inclusion has been possible only because the type had already been set for the printing of catalogue cards. To set the type expressly for the Bulletin would be prohibitive in cost.

Beginning in January 1929, the Library will cease to print its own catalogue cards and will purchase them from the Library of Congress.

This change in cataloguing necessitates a change in the Bulletin, which will appear as a selective list, including only the more important of the current books.

Its size will be reduced from the present average of 69 pages to about 12 pages.

Although this change is forced upon us by the new system of cataloguing, it is one which will meet the approval of many readers who have been repelled by the formidable appearance of the present Bulletin.

Books Recently Added to the Library

An r or b prefixed to the call number indicates that the book must be called for and used in the Reference or the Technology Room; j that it is especially suitable for children; and q that it is quarto size or larger.

Fiction

Banning, Mrs. Margaret (Culkin).

Money of her own. Harper.

The wife of a struggling young man inherits a fortune under terms which forbid her husband to use any of it. Her unwillingness to live according to his income is a cause of conflict and unhappiness that almost wrecks their marriage.

Baring, Maurice.

Tinker's leave. Doubleday.

A young Englishman visiting Paris for the first time meets a Russian who persuades him to go to the Russian-Japanese War as a photographer. His experiences in Russia and Manchuria range from falling in love to being taken prisoner by the Hun-hu-ses.

Bedel, Maurice.

Jerome; or, The latitude of love; Goncourt prize novel, tr. by L. S. Morris. Viking Press.

"The hero, Jerome, is a young playwright who has just made his first success in Paris, and whose play is now to be put on in Christiania. He journeys thither, falls in love with the country and with its personification, in the form of Uni Hansen. His gradual recovery forms the theme of a delightful story which is also an intelligent and mocking commentary on France, Norway, art, love, and what have you." T. S. Matthews in New republic, 1928.

[Begbie, Harold.]

The other door, by a gentleman with a duster. Doran.

A story of aristocratic life in England, with an undercurrent of religious and social philosophizing.

Benson, Ramsey.

Hill country; the story of J. J. Hill and the awakening West. Stokes.

Awarded the Stokes-Forum magazine prize for an American biographical novel. It is the story of the early settlement of northwestern Minnesota, and the political conflicts between the Yankee and Swedish elements in the population.

Bercovici, Konrad.

Alexander; a romantic biography. Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.

"The historic Alexander runs through it all...but the final impression is of a man far different from the real Alexander...Bercovici's story is certainly interesting, even exciting in places, but one wonders whether truth is not sometimes more interesting than fiction." C. A. Robinson, jr. in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Bettauer, Hugo.

The city without Jews; a novel of our time; tr. from the German by S. N. Brainin. Bloch Pub. Co.

Describes what happens in Vienna after the Austrian Parliament has excluded all Jews—how the life of the brilliant city becomes more and more that of a peasant village—and tells how a clever young Jew manages to have the law repealed.

Blake, George.

Gettin' in society. Harper.

The story of a Scotch family who became rich during the war, and of the reactions of its different members to Mrs. Faed's social ambitions.

Boyd, Thomas.

Shadow of the long knives; a novel. Scribner.

"A story of the frontier along the Ohio River and between Pittsburgh and Detroit in the twenty-five years before and during the Revolution. It recounts the life and adventures of Angus McDermott, a trader and scout in the service of the British." Outlook, 1928.

Braden, James Andrew.

Little brother of the Hudson; a tale of the last Eries, with illustrations by P. L. Fitzgerald. Harper.

Bromfield, Louis.

The strange case of Miss Annie Spragg. Stokes.

"Really not a novel, but a group of biographical stories that have been more or less closely related...by grouping them around the central figure of Annie Spragg...[The] book begins with the discovery of Annie Spragg's body, in the Palazzo Gonfarini, bearing the marks of the Crucifixion." B. R. Redman in Books, 1928.

Byrne, Donn.

Destiny Bay. Little.

"Nine stories of varying lengths about the people of Destiny Bay, an unfrequented spot on the north coast of Ireland...We see Donn Byrne at his best, writing about the things he loved most of all: horse races, prize-fights, and above all, graceful courtship between gallant gentlemen and lovely ladies." Thurston Macauley in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Chambers, Robert William.

The rogue's moon. Appleton.

A romantic tale of piracy along the Atlantic coast in Colonial days. The majority of the characters and episodes are real, and the author has taken no liberties with the known facts.

Chapman, Maristan.

The happy mountain. Viking Press.

"Relates the wanderings of a mountain boy, who feeling the stir of spring clean to the bone, gives way to it and goes off, leavng his true love behind him. In his pilgrimage he works on a farm and lives for a little time in a city...If the language is poetical, there is no lack of action in the story." Herschel Brickell in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Christie, Mrs. Agatha (Miller).

The mystery of the blue train. Dodd.

Deeping, Warwick.

Old Pybus. Knopf.

A man estranged from his sons by the divergence of their outlook on life, is discovered by his grandson, who finds in him the sympathy and understanding which he craves.

Farnol, Jeffery.

Guyfford of Weare. Little.

Romance and mystery in the setting of early 18th century England.

Gibbs, Arthur Hamilton.

Harness; a novel. Little.

An Englishman of the war generation grapples with the problem of making his marriage successful.

Gibbs, Sir Philip.

The age of reason; a novel. Doubleday.

Margaret Allport, the daughter of an English clergyman, marries a famous biologist, a widower with a son and daughter nearly as old as she. These children had been brought up as belonging to an age of reason rather than an age of faith, and the conflict between religious and scientific ideas is illustrated by the different points of view in the two families.

Glaspell, Susan, afterward Mrs. Cook.

Brook Evans. Stokes.

"Naomi, a girl on a prairie-farm, has dared all with her lover. When he is killed, a dull, pious farmer saves the family good name, and takes her to the West, where Brook, the dead lover's child, grows up. When she in her turn is wooed, by a youth obnoxious to the Puritan farmer, Naomi, frantic lest her tragedy should be repeated, plots for her daughter's happiness." New statesman, 1928.

Grey, Zane.

Wild Horse Mesa. Harper.

Romance and the thrilling pursuit of wild horses in the desert country and mountains of Utah.

Knibbs, Harry Herbert.

Sunny Mateel. Houghton.

The romance of a young civil engineer and a girl of the northern woods.

Krasnov, Piotr Nikolayevich.

From double eagle to red flag; tr. from the second Russian ed. by Erik Law-Gisiko, with an introduction by William Gerhardi. 2v. Duffield.

An "epic historical novel covering a quarter of a century—our quarter...It is...the very personal, very vivid and graphic account by an eye-witness of the things which really did happen at the Imperial Court...of the intimate life of the officers of the Guards, of the soldiers and people, of the coming Revolution; but chiefly of the glittering life in high quarters". Introduction.

Lincoln, Joseph Crosby.

Silas Bradford's boy. Appleton.

A young lawyer, starting practice in his home town on Cape Cod, unearths a family mystery.

McIntyre, John Thomas.

Stained sails; a novel. Stokes.

"That dashing sea fighter, John Paul Jones, appears here as a figure about which is wound a story of the slave trade, of the English port of Whitehaven, and... a love episode." Arthur Warner in Books, 1928.

Mackail, Denis George.

Tales from Greenery Street. Houghton.

Contents.—Number nine: The Cubitts and their daughter.—Number twelve: The Hunters and their telephone.—Number twenty-seven: The Meiklejohns and their luck.—Numbers thirteen and fourteen: The Newmans and their neighbours.—Number twenty-one: The handy husband.—Number eighteen: The Lovetts and their dog.—Number four: An exception to the rule.—Number thirty-one: The Poultons and their party.—Number thirty-four: The behaviour of the Binghams.—Number thirty-five: The Sumners and their staff.—Number six: The little presents.—Number twenty-three: Good-bye to Greenery Street.

Murasaki shikibu.

Blue trousers; being the fourth part of "The tale of Genji"; tr. from the Japanese by Arthur Waley. Allen.

This closing part "has to do with the story of Genji's ward, Tamakatsura, and the marriage of Yugiri, Genji's son, to Kumoi, the daughter of Genji's dearest friend". Independent, 1928.

Nordhoff, Charles Bernard.

The derelict; further adventures of Charles Selden and his native friends in the South Seas. Little.

O'Brien, Howard Vincent.

Four-and-twenty blackbirds. Doubleday.

Published for The Crime Club, Inc.

O'Reilly, Mary Boyle.

The black fan. Reilly.

"Exciting novelistic version of what happened in central European royal circles in the summer of 1914...Included is the romance of Miss Carmel Stapleton, English governess to the archduke's children, and Count Basil Badani, narrator of the stirring events." Books, 1928.

Parrish, Anne.

All kneeling. Harper.

"The portrait of an egocentric, Christabel Caine, born beautiful and hiding a complete selfishness behind her fragile good looks her fragility as much a pose as her devotion to the happiness of others—who wrote a book of verse quite early in life, and on the strength of its false reputation went off to New York to be Bohemian, and eventually became the wife of a rich man." Herschel Brickell in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Pedler, Mrs. Margaret.

Bitter heritage. Doubleday.

A young English girl who feels her father's disgrace a bitter and inescapable heritage, is discovered by a friend of her father and given a chance at normal happiness.

Pedler, Mrs. Margaret.

The hermit of Far End. Grosset.

A quixotic action of his youth has caused Garth Trent's withdrawal from active life, and when love makes him wish to enter it again, the consequences of this act threaten his new-found happiness.

Porter, Mrs. Eleanor (Hodgman).

The fortunate Mary. Doubleday.

Contents.—The fortunate Mary.—The undoing of Charity Randall.—Eyes that could see.—Off the boards.—The Christmas card that travelled.—A periodic courtship.—A helper of Cupid's. —The minister's legacy.—The new Baal.—The training of Missionary Mary.—Miss Ann.—Out of the ashes.—Janet's prescription.—The journey of the Christmas spirit.—A matter of wall paper.—The knight and the princess.—A trolley-car romance. —With a price on his head.—A scheme of Aunt Emmeline's.—Giving thanks with Aunt Molly.—"Daisy don't."—Cinders.—A matter of benevolence.

Raine, William McLeod.

Texas man. Doubleday.

A story of the Southwest in pioneer days.

Riesenberg, Felix.

"Chase".—On the Great Lakes.—An old shipmate.—Navigation.—Herbert L. Bridgeman.—Grafters.—The "Admiral", A. B.—The old chief engineer.—Ship's doctors.—Captain Thomas J. Turner.—In Rotten Row.—Captain Cortez of the "Guadalhorce".—Narrative of the gentlemanly boarder.—Adventure of the admiral's chef.—Pearl Street.—The "Bear".—Captain William G. Randle.—The deep-sea lead.—Lord Ballyracket.—A study in petto.—Along the lower deck.—The master and the engineers.

Roberts, Elizabeth Madox.

Jingling in the wind. Viking Press.

A fantastic and farcical tale of Jeremy, professional rainmaker, who journeys to the rainmakers' convention, wins the championship, and falls in love with Tulip, herself eminent in the profession.

[Rozanov, Mikhail Grigor'evich.]

The diary of a communist school boy; tr. from the Russian by Alexander Werth. Payson.

Author's pseud.. N. Ognyov, at head of title.

Endeavors to present the day-to-day states of mind of a post-revolution Russian youngster of high-school age. On the surface, it is a lively and often amusing picture, and the communist arguments, if any, are inherent in the characters rather than expressed. Adapted from Arthur Ruhl in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Smith, Sheila Kaye-.

Joanna Godden married, and other stories. Harper.

Contents.—Joanna Godden married.—Mrs. Adis.—Good wits jump.—The mockbeggar. —A day in a woman's life.—The fear of streets.—A workingman's wife.—The redemption of Tintageu.—The man who was lost in the animal kingdom.

Snaith, John Collis.

Surrender. Appleton.

A tale of adventure and romance. An English peer and an American artist escape from the French Foreign Legion, fleeing across the desert, and find in England a love which tests their friendship.

Stern, Gladys Bronwyn.

Debonair; the story of Persephone. Knopf.

"Loveday, the debonair, was an exhibition dancer, and an unabashed gold digger of singular piquancy and virtue. The book is woven of her escapades and love affair with Charles Elvaston against a background of jealous and maternal love." Independent, 1928.

Tarkington, Newton Booth.

Growth. Doubleday.

Contents.—The god.—The magnificent Ambersons.—The turmoil.—National Avenue.

Contains in one volume the trilogy which tells the story of the growth of a Middle Western city. "National Avenue" was published separately as "The midlander".

Tupper, Tristram.

The river. Lippincott.

"Takes us to the railroad construction camp near the tunnel that was built in "Jorgensen"; we see the contractors, the engineers, the hangers-on, and we sense the atmosphere of the construction work. The protagonist, a youth of seventeen, falls in love with Rosalee, an amateur camp-follower who is his elder in experience and years." Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Weaver, John Van Alstyne.

Her knight comes riding. Knopf.

"The tragedy of a romantic. We see the gradual collapse of Fanny Williams's world under the battering of externals. Her father had given her a dream world...but he died before he could help her to reconcile it with the brutal realities of Brooklyn schools, Brooklyn tenements, Brooklyn offices." R. B. MacDougall in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Webster, Henry Kitchell.

The quartz eye; a mystery in ultra violet. Bobbs.

Also published under the title "Ultraviolet".
A detective story.

Wescott, Glenway.

Good-bye Wisconsin. Harper.

Contents.—Good-bye Wisconsin.—The runaways.—Adolescence.—A guilty woman.—The dove came down.—Like a lover.—In a thicket.—Prohibition.—The sailor.—The wedding march.—The whistling swan.

Weyman, Stanley John.

The Lively Peggy. Longmans.

A privateering romance set in an English seaport town during the Napoleonic wars.

Wharton, Mrs. Edith (Jones).

The children. Appleton.

Judy, nearly sixteen, is the oldest of the seven children who are the product of the four marriages in which Cliffe and Joyce Wheater somehow have been involved. Her determination to give the group the stability so constantly threatened by their parents, draws into the family circle other unrelated participants.

Williamson, Henry.

Tarka the otter; his joyful water-life and death in the country of the Two Rivers; with an introduction by Sir John Fortescue. Dutton.

Wilson, Margaret.

Daughters of India; a novel. Harper.

"This extremely ingenuous account of the life of Indian women at home has the form of a novel, but is nothing more than a day-to-day reminiscence of the zenana. The author ...has the double advantage of writing as an American and as an observer of zenana mission work from the inside during several years of residence in the Punjab. The simplicity and kindliness with which the picture is drawn serve to emphasise its profound sadness." New statesman, 1928.

Wodehouse, Pelham Grenville.

Money for nothing. Doubleday.

A plausible oil-stock dealer and his wife are guests at an English country house where they plot with the owner to dispose of some of the valuable possessions which the terms of his inheritance forbid him to sell.

Hamburg, Merrill. 533.652 H19

Beginning to fly; the book of model airplanes; with an introduction by R. E. Byrd; with illustrations and diagrams. Houghton, 1928.

The same.....j 533.652 H19

Title misleading. Not concerned with flying. Includes history of aëronautics and some description of aircraft, but deals mainly with construction of model aëroplanes, and with organization of a club and management of contests.

Le Page, Wynn Laurence. 533.652 L62

The A B C of flight; with a foreword by E. P. Warner. Wiley, 1928.

Good, brief explanation in simple language. Deals with principles of flight, and with construction and operation of aëroplanes.

Chemistry. Mineralogy

Adkins, Homer Burton, & McElvain, S. M. 547 A236e

Elementary organic chemistry. McGraw, 1928. (International chemical series.)

Textbook for a short course in organic chemistry. Presents fundamentals with only slight attention to applications.

Born, Max. 541.2 B63

The mechanics of the atom; tr. by J. W. Fisher, and rev. by D. R. Hartree. Bell, 1927. (International text-books of exact science.)

Contains bibliographical foot-notes.

Mathematical treatment of the facts of atomic physics with special reference to the underlying mechanical principles. Intended for those having some knowledge of this subject. Does not treat of the latest developments, such as the new quantum mechanics.

Columbia University. 540.4 C72

Contemporary developments in chemistry; lectures delivered at Columbia University in the special course in chemistry given in the summer session of 1926 on the occasion of the opening of the Chandler Chemical Laboratories. 1927.

Bibliography at end of some of the pamphlets.

A comprehensive survey of starch chemistry. v.1. Chemical Catalog Co., 1928.

"References" at end of most of the chapters.

v.1, pt.2, is separately paged and is a Bibliography, comp. by R. P. Walton under the auspices of the New York Public library.

A series of papers on starch and its applications, supplemented by a 360-page bibliography.

Geology. Meteorology

Bradley, John Hodgdon. 550 B68

The earth and its history; a textbook of geology. Ginn [c1928].

Good introductory text for use in short course in general geology. Includes chapter on the history of geology.

Brooks, Charles Ernest Pelham. 551.569 B77c

Climate through the ages; a study of the climatic factors and their variations. Benn, 1926.

"Theories of climatic change": p.430–432.

"References" at end of most of the chapters.

Attempt to explain the causes of climatic changes of geologic time. Discusses the various climatic factors and their variation, geological climates and their causes, and the climates of the past. Holds that geographical factors have dominated climatic history.

"It is to be hoped that it will have a salutary effect on those who see in new and fantastic hypotheses the only solution to the problem of geologic climates." Science, 1928.

Hardy, Jocelyn Lee. 940.917 H26

I escape! with an introduction by Sir A. C. Doyle; illustrated. Dodd, 1928.

Captain Hardy, of the Connaught Rangers during the World War, tells of his experiences in German prison camps and of his repeated efforts to escape.

Lutz, Hermann. 940.912 L98

Lord Grey and the World War; tr. by E. W. Dickes. Knopf, 1928.

"List of authorities": p.[17]–20.

Dr. Lutz reënters the controversy over the question of war-guilt with what is really a careful and detailed reply to Lord Grey's 'Twenty-five years". Treating this book as though it were a considered indictment of German foreign policy, instead of a collection of personal memoirs, Dr. Lutz has no difficulty in showing that Lord Grey has occasionally forgotten a "conversation" or overlooked a document; and he never fails to find something sinister in such omissions. Adapted from Saturday review, 1928.

Books for the Blind

The Library has a collection of about 5,000 books and 5 periodicals for the blind. The Pennsylvania Home Teaching Society and Free Circulating Library for the Blind support in this district a teacher, herself totally blind, who, under the direction of this Library, visits the adult blind in their homes and teaches them to read. This service and the use of the books are absolutely free to all adult blind in Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania and the director requests that names and addresses of such persons be sent to him in order that the teacher may call upon them.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY OF PITTSBURGH

MONTHLY BULLETIN

VOL. 33 DECEMBER 1928 NO. 10

THE NEW BULLETIN

The Monthly Bulletin has always included practically every book added to the Library.

This wide inclusion has been possible only because the type had already been set for the printing of catalogue cards. To set the type expressly for the Bulletin would be prohibitive in cost.

Beginning in January 1929, the Library will cease to print its own catalogue cards and will purchase them from the Library of Congress.

This change in cataloguing necessitates a change in the Bulletin, which will appear as a selective list, including only the more important of the current books.

Its size will be reduced from the present average of 69 pages to about 12 pages.

Although this change is forced upon us by the new system of cataloguing, it is one which will meet the approval of many readers who have been repelled by the formidable appearance of the present Bulletin.

Bojer, Johan.

The new temple; tr. from the Norwegian by C. Archer. Century.

A sequel to "The great hunger". The son of Peer Holm rebels first against capitalism, then against the conventional jealous God whom he sees people worship. He seeks a truer conception of God—a new temple for worship—and in the clash with tradition he finds that it is not the doctrine but the spirit that matters, and the fellowship with other human souls.

Buchan, John.

The Runagates Club. Houghton.

Contents.—The green wildebeest; Sir Richard Hannay's story.—The frying-pan and the fire; the Duke of Burminster's story.—Dr. Lartius; John Palliser-Yeates's story.—The wind in the portico; Henry Nightingale's story.—'Divus' Johnston; Lord Lamancha's story.—The loathly opposite; Oliver Pugh's story.—Sing a song of sixpence; Sir Edward Leithen's story.—Ship to Tarshish; Ralph Collatt's story.—Skule Skerry; Anthony Hurrell's story.—Tendebant manus; Sir Arthur Warcliff's story.—The last crusade; Francis Martendale's story.—Fullcircle; Martin Peckwether's story.

Colby, Mrs. Nathalie (Sedgwick).

A man can build a house. Harcourt.

A story concerned with half a dozen parallel lives. The author shows us on the one side, the predatory, the unscrupulous, the weak, the vulgar pursuing their selfish ends; and on the other side, in the figures of an honest, wholesome-hearted servant and her laborer husband she shows us uncorrupted and incorruptible good. Condensed from New York times, 1928.

Cuthrell, Mrs. Faith (Baldwin).

Alimony. Dodd.

A story of modern life showing the moral effects of divorce and alimony.

Daudet, Alphonse.

Wives of men of genius; tr. by Edward Wakefield; with photogravure illustrations by Bieler, Myrbach, and Rossi. Worthington. (Worthington's international library.)

Short stories portraying women of varying temperament.

Fulton, Reed.

Davy Jones's locker; an adventure story of the Astorian expedition, illustrated by M. D. Lee. Doubleday.

Huston, McCready.

Dear Senator. Bobbs.

"In following the rise of Honest Dan Meredith, one of the original Harding men in Illyria, a Senator at the close of the story with the White House rising before him in not too misty prospect, Mr. Huston sets forth the reasons why 'a man might be President in this country, the way we work things, and still have a misspent life'...It is a newspaper man who tells the story of Dan Meredith, and his own story more or less interwoven with it." Elmer Davis in Saturday review of literature, 1928.

Isaacs, Abram Samuel.

School days in Home Town. Jewish Publication Soc. of America, 1928.

"The story of a Jewish school whose atmosphere was undoubtedly old-fashioned." Preface.

Lane, Rose Wilder.

Cindy; a romance of the Ozarks. Harper.

A tale of a mountain feud, revived when Cindy, a high-spirited orphan, is seized and held as "bound gal" by the Greenwoods, whose word is law in Dougan County.

Lutz, Mrs. Grace (Livingston) Hill.

Blue ruin. Lippincott.

A fine young girl deeply disappointed in the changed attitude of the young seminary graduate she had expected to marry, finds that life still holds beauty and promise for her.

McFee, William.

Pilgrims of adversity. Doubleday.

The experiences of James Wishart, a young Scotchman, and his shipmates on the tramp steamer "Candleshoe" when they become involved in a South American revolution.

Millin, Mrs. Sarah Gertrude.

The coming of the Lord. Liveright.

A vivid picture of the tragic results, in a little South African town, of religious and racial conflict.

Miln, Mrs. Louise (Jordan).

The flutes of Shanghai. Stokes.

The love-story of a straightforward young English girl just out from London, and an Englishman who had spent his life in China and had a deep affection for it. The setting is in Shanghai during the troubled days of 1926 and 1927.

Nathan, Robert.

The bishop's wife. Bobbs.

When the story opens, the bishop is in great need of a capable archdeacon, and in response to his prayer the angel Michael arrives, and concerns himself not only with the affairs of the church but with the unhappiness of the bishop's wife and the pastimes of their charming little daughter, Juliet.

Oppenheim, Edward Phillips.

Matorni's vineyard. Little.

A stirring tale of international intrigue, concerned with a great Italian dictator and his longing for conquest. The time is advanced to 1940.

Peterkin, Mrs. Julia E.

Scarlet Sister Mary. Bobbs.

A story of Southern Negro life.

"Into the pattern of her life, Sister Mary has woven among the thick scarlet strands of sin the dazzling white threads of religious salvation...But whether she be black, white or scarlet, she is an amazingly vital and brave hearted woman." Hudson Strode in Books, 1928.

Phillpotts, Eden.

The ring fence. Macmillan.

The scene of the story is the hamlet of Thorpe Michael in Dartmoor. The book's main charm lies in its pleasant humor and in its quiet and natural descriptions of country life and character.

Richmond, Mrs. Grace Louise (Smith).

At the south gate. Doubleday.

A story of two families, one, unhappy and discontented, living in the big house, the other, in the old house at the south gate—an author and his wife, and her brother, a missionary surgeon home for a visit—and how their destinies become entangled.

Smith, Arthur Douglas Howden.

Hate. Lippincott.

A vigorous tale of adventure during the War of 1812. An American sea-captain, believing himself betrayed to the enemy by the woman he loved, turns privateer and devotes himself to wreaking vengeance upon her and upon the Federalists.

Strunsky, Simeon.

King Akhnaton; a chronicle of ancient Egypt. Longmans.

"Superficially this is a carefully documented historical novel dealing with the attempted political and social reforms of the 'heretic king' Akhnaton and their tentatively tragic end. Actually it is a subtle roman à clef in which a parallel is drawn between the ideals of Akhnaton and those of Woodrow Wilson." Nation, 1928.

Unruh, Fritz von.

Way of sacrifice; tr. from the German by C. A. Macartney. Knopf.

A devastating picture of the soul-shattering futility of modern war, written during the World War by a Prussian officer who had come to believe in peace.

Van Buren, Maud, & Bemis, K. I., ed.

Van Dyke. Henry.

"Even unto Bethlehem"; the story of Christmas. Scribner.

"It does not claim to be a historical record. It is a picture drawn by imagination looking for the truth. But there is nothing here that is out of harmony with the Gospels, nothing that does not belong to the holy land and time when these things came to pass." [Author's note.]

Van Vechten, Carl.

Spider boy; a scenario for a moving picture. Knopf.

A farcical tale of a timid author, astonished and embarrassed to find himself a celebrity overnight, who is seized upon and lionized by Hollywood.

Wallace, Edgar.

The feathered serpent. Doubleday.

Published for The Crime Club, Inc.
A mystery story.

Walpole, Hugh.

The silver thorn; a book of stories. Doubleday.

Contents.—The little donkeys with the crimson saddles.—The tiger.—No unkindness intended.— Ecstasy.— A picture.— Old Elizabeth (a portrait).— The etching.— Chinese horses.—The tarn.—Major Wilbraham.—A silly old fool.—The enemy.—The enemy in ambush.—The dove.—Bachelors.

Wells, Herbert George.

Mr. Blettsworthy on Rampole Island; being the story of a gentleman of culture and refinement who suffered shipwreck and saw no human beings other than cruel and savage cannibals for several years, how he beheld Megatheria alive and made some notes of their habits, how he became a sacred lunatic, how he did at last escape in a strange manner from the horror and barbarities of Rampole Island in time to fight in the great war, and how afterwards he came near returning to that island forever, with much amusing and edifying matter concerning manners, customs, beliefs, warfare, crime, and a storm at sea, concluding with some reflections upon life in general and upon these present times in particular. Doubleday.

Williams, Valentine.

The crouching beast; a Clubfoot story. Houghton.

Also published under the title "Come!-says the drum".
A detective story.

Woolf, Mrs. Virginia (Stephen).

Orlando; a biography. Harcourt.

"Mrs. Woolf's hero-heroine is hundreds of years old. At the beginning of the book Orlando is a boy of 16, melancholy, indolent, loving solitude and given to writing poetry; the age is the Elizabethan; the book ends on the 11th of October 1928, and Orlando is a thoroughly modern matron of 36, who has published a successful book of poems and has evolved a hard-earned philosophy of life." C. B. Chase in New York times, 1928.

Woolf, Mrs. Virginia (Stephen).
The voyage out. Doran.
"Externally...the story of a winter's trip to a small South American resort which a few English people have discovered...More closely it is the story of Rachel Vinrace's discovery of herself and of certain human relationships; and finally of her voyage into death." C. M. Rourke in New republic, 1920.

Young, Emily Hilda.
The vicar's daughter. Harcourt.
A novel of family life in an English vicarage. A dramatic situation develops, but the emphasis is on delineation and interpretation of character.

Bibliography: p.217–218.

Williams, Michael, b. 1879. 282 W74c

Catholicism and the modern mind. MacVeagh, 1928.

In these chapters, many of which have appeared in various magazines and reviews, the editor (1928) of the Catholic magazine, the "Commonweal", deals with aspects of the Catholic Church in contact with American life outside the church. The "modern mind" he defines as "simply the sum of all the heresies against which the Catholic Church has struggled...since its beginning".

Sociology

Allen, William Harvey. 363 A43

Al Smith's Tammany Hall; champion political vampire. Institute for Public Service, 1928.

The author, director (1928) of the Institute for Public Service, sets forth the political background from which Governor Smith sprang and reviews the history of Tammany Hall since his boyhood in the '70's and '80's to show that the ideals and methods of the organization have not been reformed.

Brittain, Vera M. 396.5 B75

Women's work in modern England. Douglas [1928].

Bibliography: p.202–204.

Discusses women's work in industry, business, and the professions, giving something of the political, economic, and social background against which any chosen career must be carried out, and comparing the advantages of one type of career with those of another.
